DOMINION AGENTS AT REPARATIONS MEETING OPPOSED

MacDonald Holds That Only British Government Should Have Representatives

High Commissioners Report Exchange of Views in London to Governments

London, July 12 (Canadian Press Cable)—The meeting between Premier MacDonald and the Dominion High Commissioners in London yesterday at which the question of Dominion representation at the Inter-Allied conference to be held in London on July 16 in connection with the Daves report on reparations was discussed lasted more than three hours.

Although nothing official has been issued about the matter it may be taken for granted that Premier MacDonald advanced a number of objections to direct participation by the various Dominions in the coming conference and urged that such participation would be deemed by other countries as unduly favoring the British element at the conference.

The High Commissioners are submitting to their respective Governments all the views advanced at the meeting.

While the meeting decided nothing definitely as to participation by the Dominions in the conference, it may be taken as a certainty that Premier MacDonald intends to maintain his present attitude against Dominion representation.

MACDONALD'S MANAGER SUPPORTING DAVIS

D. L. Rockwell Assures Candidate in U.S. Campaign He Desires Election

New York, July 12.—Declaring that "no candidate ever had a clearer title to a nomination than John W. Davis," David Ladd Rockwell, national campaign manager for William Gibbs McAdoo, sent to Mr. Davis, Democratic candidate for the presidency of the United States, and his running mate, Charles W. Bryan, congratulations and an assurance of enthusiastic support in the forthcoming campaign.

Mr. Rockwell's letter to Mr. Davis said: "Please accept my warmest congratulations upon your nomination. Your record as a citizen, lawyer and public official is so splendid that our party is assured of leadership of the highest order, and when you are elected President, one so admirably equipped is bound to make a record that all America may well be proud of."

"I want to take this occasion to assure you of my enthusiastic support and to wish you the success that I know will be yours."

Mr. Rockwell's letter to Mr. Bryan expressed similar sentiment.

In an interview while he was dictating these letters, Mr. Rockwell told newspapermen his office relations with Mr. McAdoo had "ceased the moment Mr. Davis was nominated." Mr. Rockwell made it plain, however, that his personal relations with Mr. McAdoo continued "peculiarly pleasant."

Mr. Rockwell said that although he did not know what would be Mr. McAdoo's attitude in the coming campaign, it was impossible for him to think of Mr. McAdoo bolting the party, as it has been reported he contemplated.

Coyotes and Timber Wolves in Oregon Area to be Killed

Klamath Falls, Or., July 12.—A detail of Government trappers has been called here by Elmer Williams of the United States Biological Survey, of Portland, to deal with the rabid coyotes on the upper Williamson River where the animals have killed twenty-eight grown cattle in the past ten days, according to Williams. The trappers also will attempt to break up a horde of timber wolves which have caused considerable livestock losses on Klamath Lake.

TIMBER DESTROYED BY FIRE ON REDONDA ISLAND TOTALS MORE THAN 3,000,000 FEET, SAY REPORTS

Vancouver, July 12.—More than 3,000,000 feet of the finest fallen Douglas fir timber has been totally destroyed, besides considerable logging equipment, in the devastating forest fire which is still raging over Redonda Island, according to reports received by R. V. Stuart, Chief Forest Ranger at Vancouver.

The fire on the large island is stated to be completely out of control, and, fanned by strong winds, is sweeping the vast timber reserves from end to end. All efforts to check the blaze have been rendered futile by the intense heat of the flames and the dense smoke. Driven by a high wind, the fresh forest fire which broke out in the mountainous regions back of Narrows Arm last night is also reported out of control.

FORCED BACK
Already the raging flames, advancing over a two-mile front in that locality, have forced back large gangs of firefighters who have been making a heroic fight to save the timber and the logging camps.

After fighting for the last two days, 200 men under the supervision of Dominion Forestry officials have got the fire in the Cowichan area on Vancouver Island under control.

RAINS IN INTERIOR
Calgary, July 12.—Rains in the interior of British Columbia, and showers in parts of Northern Alberta have improved the forest fire situation.

In the Kamloops region there is one fire, but the hazard conditions are fair. In the Sicamous district 2,000 acres have been burned over since the big electrical storm, that started so many fires on July 2.

All the fires are now under control except one on Bear Creek.

NEWSPAPER REPORTS
A paper on public sentiment as indicated by newspaper stories, read by Chief D. Birrell of London, Ontario, was the feature of this morning's session. Chief Birrell said the big headlines put on newspaper stories seemingly aroused public sentiment in favor of the criminals who were declared it seemed to be the policy of newspapers to put on monstrous headlines when a policeman was killed by a criminal, but when the criminal came to trial the headlines were smaller.

194 POINTS WON BY U.S. AT OLYMPIAD

Finland Second To-day With 135 Points; Britain Third With 63½

Olympic Stadium, Colombes, France, July 12.—With the next to the last day of the Olympic track and field sports completed, the standing of the nations on points was as follows:

United States 194, Finland 135, Great Britain 63½, Sweden 26½, France 19½, Switzerland 11, Australia 10, Hungary 7½, Argentina 5, South Africa 5, Canada 5, Norway 4, New Zealand 4, Denmark 3, Japan 1.

TWO NEW RECORDS
Two world records were shattered. Two Paavo Nurmi, gaining his third Olympic triumph, led Finland to a double victory in the grueling cross-country race which witnessed the collapse of more than half of the contestants under the terrific heat that marked to-day's championships.

One of the new world's records went to the United States relay quartette, which lowered the 400-metre mark to 41.1-5 seconds in winning a trial heat before Great Britain had set a new figure of 42 seconds.

HOP, STEP AND JUMP
The other record went to Winter of Australia, who made a mark of 15.525 metres in the hop, step and jump after Brunetto of Argentina had raised the Olympic figure for this event shortly before to 15.42 metres.

Finland, with her long distance runners running true to form where all the others wilted except the Americans, who took second place, added thirty-two points to her total in the two events and made a big gain on the United States.

DECISION PROTESTED
In the wrestling contests, James Trufonov of Regina, Sask., was defeated by J. Sarsen, United States, the latter securing a rolling fall. The decision, however, was protested on the ground that a rolling fall was not contemplated under the rules and the question was referred to the International Wrestling Federation.

Clifford Chilcott, Toronto, and Donald Stockton, Montreal, who are regarded as having a fair chance of winning their contests in the Olympic wrestling bouts, have drawn byes.

It was also resolved to take steps to insure the preservation of the home at Birmingham of James Watt, inventor of the steam engine.

The conference adopted the following resolution:

"This conference is of the opinion that the world's most crying need today is greater production and manufacturing activity among its peoples under conditions which will insure the highest prosperity and happiness and that this can be best accomplished by the fuller development of natural power resources and the establishment of the most economical means for the general distribution and utilization of energy."

The conference ended last night.

NORTHERNERS MUST GO THIRSTY; CAN IMPORT NO LIQUOR

Canada and U.S. Fail to Complete Arrangement For Shipping Wet Goods

Atlin Liquor Store to Remain Closed For Lack of Stock

Failure of Canada and the United States to ratify the new International Liquor Treaty at the present session of the Canadian Parliament and the recent session of the United States Congress will mean that the far northern districts of British Columbia as well as the Yukon territory will have no legal liquor this year.

Officials of the Attorney-General's Department here, who have learned of the delay in the completion of the liquor treaty, keenly regret the inability of Congress and Parliament to pass this pact and open the way for shipment of liquor into the northern territories.

Under the present circumstances it will be impossible to reopen the Atlin liquor store closed for lack of liquor supplies, liquor officials stated today. The United States prohibition law absolutely forbids the shipment of liquor across Alaskan territory into the Yukon or northern British Columbia, which are legally wet, but actually extremely dry. The liquor supplies of the Atlin liquor store were exhausted long ago, and it has been impossible for the Provincial Government to replenish them. As a result the people of Atlin have been unable to secure the liquor to which British Columbia law entitles them. The position of the Yukon people has been just as serious as they have to depend upon liquor across Alaskan territory.

Under the new liquor treaty between Canada and the United States, as the Provincial Government understands it, Canada would be allowed to ship liquor through Alaska, to Atlin and the Yukon, and in return the Dominion would introduce more vigorous methods to prevent the smuggling of liquor into United States territory.

United States Congress, however, adjourned without ratifying this treaty, and Parliament, it is understood, will not meet until its next session. Probably no further action will be taken until the middle of next year, and meanwhile the people of the Far North must go thirsty.

WEAR RAILROAD EARNED ONLY $23.78

Owners Seek Permission to Abandon Death Valley Line, California

Movie Actors Increased Company's Income From $1.32 the Year Before

Los Angeles, July 12.—In attitude and earnings the Death Valley Railroad is the lowest in the United States, according to a report filed here with the State Railroad Commission, seeking permission to abandon the line because, the company declares, "it isn't worth the distinction of being designated a common carrier."

The earnings jumped from $1.32 in 1922 to $23.78 in 1923. Company officials explain the increase was "unnatural" and was on account of motion picture companies using the desert as locations.

778 Norwegian Sailors Remained in the U.S. in 1923

Christiania, July 12.—The Norwegian Consulate in New York has informed the Foreign Office that 778 Norwegian seamen deserted their ships in New York during 1923. Norwegian shipowners are hopeful the United States Congress will make it an offence for captains of vessels to employ men who are known to have deserted from other ships.

Uniform Insurance Laws For All West

Legislation affecting the operations of insurance companies all over Western Canada will be made uniform when new British Columbia laws passed by the British Columbia Legislature in recent years come into effect September 2.

Orders-in-Council setting September 2 as the date when these measures become effective were passed by the Executive Council yesterday. The two new acts affected are the Insurance Act and the Accident and Sickness Policy Insurance Act. Similar laws are being brought into force in Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario this year.

BUILDING FIGURES ARE CLIMBING UP

Total Reaching Mark of Corresponding Time Last Year

Building permits in Victoria are approaching the total for last year at this time.

The increased activity in bungalow construction is making up for the fewer number of big figure jobs. Bungalow building and especially remodeling is well sustained, and July has opening opened promisingly. With the contract for extension to Quilicum School, tenders for which are invited up to July 22, and the contract for the ferry landings at Brentwood Bay and Camp Point, Saanich Inlet among those outstanding this month promises to reach a high mark on Vancouver Island.

This morning a permit was granted to J. F. Savident for the frame dwelling at 1729 Kings Road. Most of the contractors in the city have some kind of job on hand, and a brief halt in work a big gain is rushing the completion of the $10,000 garage being built by Laney Bros. at 904 Fort Street. The bricklayers are well ahead with their work and steel is now being placed.

Major K. B. Spurgin announces that additions being made at Brentwood College during the summer will make accommodation for 100 scholars before the opening of next term towards the end of September. W. Long is the contractor and the dormitory accommodation and locker space being provided. The erection of a library has been laid for a college chapel on the campus which will cost approximately $15,000.

Work is being started on the Port Hardy wharf and warehouse, which follows the completion of a nine-mile stretch of road from Coal Harbor to Port Hardy. William Greenlees of Vancouver is the contractor for the job, which will run to about $20,000.

WINNIPEG WILL HAVE BEET SUGAR FACTORY

First Plant of Kind on Prairies to be Erected For Next Year

Red River Valley Declared Well Adapted For Growing of Beets

Winnipeg, July 12.—Construction of Manitoba's first beet sugar factory will be commenced in the fall, according to an announcement made by officials interested in the project. Assurance of between 400 to 500 acres of beet growing territory alone already has been received by the promoters, who express confidence that the whole of the desired acreage will be fully contracted.

The objective of the men who are actively engaged in this undertaking is from 5,000 to 8,000 acres sown to sugar beets in the Red River valley next spring.

Agriculturists will tour the districts where farmers are producing sugar beets, and give advice as to how to obtain best results.

TO SHARE IN PROFITS
A conservative estimate of yield to be expected per acre from sugar beets sown in the Red River valley is placed by an expert at from ten to fifteen tons. The company which is being formed to handle this product intends guaranteeing to the farmers a minimum price for each ton grown and a share in the profits as a bonus.

H. C. Miller, of Denver, Col., one of the leading consulting engineers of the United States, has made a careful survey of the Red River valley lands, which he declares to be ideal for the production of heavy crops of sugar beets. Mr. Miller says that weather and water conditions of the district also are wonderful for producing beets, and forecasts that this plant is only one of many which will be built to advantage in Manitoba and parts of the other Prairie Provinces.

PREMIER OF EGYPT WOUNDED IN HAND WHEN ATTEMPT WAS MADE ON LIFE BY STUDENT

Youth Fired at Zagloul Pasha as He Was About to Board Train in Cairo for Alexandria; Crowd Would Have Lynched Assailant if Police Had Not Taken Him Away; Premier Now in Hospital.

Cairo, July 12.—Said Zagloul Pasha, Premier of Egypt, was wounded in the right hand by a revolver shot at the railroad station here to-day when about to leave for Alexandria.

The Premier was walking along the platform between the Sub-governor and the acting commandant of police amid cheering crowds when a young man fired at him from behind the front rank of spectators and then threatened the police commandant.

The assailant was rescued with difficulty from the crowd by the police and was placed on the train, while the Premier was removed to his home.

The assailant later described himself as Abdel Khadir, aged twenty, and said he was a student who recently had arrived in Cairo from Germany.

The mob, which wanted to lynch the student, injured him somewhat before the police took him away.

There were reports that the Premier's condition was grave and that little hope was held out for his recovery, but bulletins from the hospital to which he was later removed were reassuring.

The Premier is a man of advanced years.

ORANGEMEN MEET AT NANAIMO TO-DAY

Large Gatherings From Mainland and Island; Celebrations Elsewhere

Many Victoria Orangemen left this morning for Nanaimo to participate with the lower Mainland and Island lodges in the celebration of the twelfth of July 234th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

Over thirty lodges participated, and an attendance of over 3,000 was expected. The parade started from St. John's Ambulance Hall, with the silver cornet band in attendance, and proceeded to the central sports ground, where speeches suitable to the occasion were delivered. The chief speaker was Rev. C. E. Batzold, Ladner, Grand Chaplain of the Provincial Grand Lodge. Then came sports, and it is planned to close the proceedings with a dance at the St. John Hall, after the steamer and trains have left with the excursionists.

Two special steamers conveyed the Vancouver party, which was associated with the delegates from the Westminister, North Fraser, and Chilliwack county organizations. The hosts of the day were Wellington Loyal Orange Lodge No. 1619 and Orange Lily Lodge No. 109.

IN CANADIAN CITIES
Toronto, July 12.—Accompanied in some cases by unusual celebrations, the festival day of Orangemen was generally observed to-day in most of the provinces of Canada. It was the 234th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, and the local army and navy in many places to make it the most successful in the history of the Order in Canada were duly carried out.

In Toronto, acknowledged to be the ultra-Orange city of North America, the ceremonies and processions of the Orange lodges overshadowed all other business, social and community activities of the day. The parade was again the "greatest ever" and the speech-making at the Exhibition grounds presented the ideals and the prospects of the Orange movement in measures of optimistic oratory.

Presiding leaders of the Dominion Orange associations, however, addressed meetings in other parts of Ontario. Hon. J. W. Edwards, Grand Master for British America, spoke at Tweed, Ont. Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, took part in the celebration at Prescott, Ont.

IN VANCOUVER
Vancouver, July 12.—With flags flying and bands playing, 1,500 Orangemen left Vancouver this morning for Nanaimo to celebrate the 234th anniversary of the "Glorious Twelfth." As early as 6 o'clock services were held in the various lodges throughout the city, many attending who were unable to make the trip to Nanaimo.

The lodges paraded at Orange headquarters, corner of Gore and Hastings Streets at 8 o'clock and marched to Pier D, where they embarked. Contingents were present from Chilliwack, Mission, New Westminister and other points on the lower mainland.

INQUIRIES FOR NEW LUMBER MILL

Mr. Beasley Reports on Fire Situation Up-Island

Inquiries have been made with regard to a new lumber mill in the Port Alberni district, H. E. Beasley, General Superintendent of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, states on his return from an inspection of the line.

The promoters are anxious to secure suitable limits, on the Alberni canal, and some definite announcement of their intentions may be available in the near future.

Mr. Beasley states that the expectations that had been made with regard to laying steel on the Great Central Lake branch, in anticipation of lumber shipments, have not yet been realized, owing to change in plans of the island, but it is hoped that conditions will warrant completion of the line later.

While smoke from the bush fires on the Mainland and the islands between the island and Mainland obstructs the view along the coast, with the exception of the fire still burning on Mount Prevost, and at one other point, the company's line which traverses the chief settled part of the island are so far free from fire hazard, although the perilous condition is fully appreciated. It is felt up-island that no real safety is possible until rain falls.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR TO RESIDE IN PEKING

British Government Not Prepared to Raise Its Legation to Embassy

London, July 12.—An exchange of views between Washington and London regarding the raising of the British Legation in Peking to embassy status, in view of the Soviet Ambassador's decision to appoint a full-fledged ambassador to China, has resulted in a definite understanding on the question. It is stated the British are disinclined to change the Peking Legation to an embassy despite the diplomatic precedence the Soviet Ambassador would have over the British Minister.

If Japan decides to follow the lead of Russia and raise the Japanese Legation at Peking to embassy status, it is believed the British authorities are likely to reconsider the question.

WILL KILL WOLVES TO PROTECT CARIBOU

Hunters Will Operate in Barren Lands East of Slave Lake

Edmonton, July 12.—Government wolf-hunters this season will again penetrate the Barren Lands and wage war on the bands of timber wolves which prey on the caribou herds. Last year the hunters killed off several hundred of the predatory beasts in the country northeast of Great Slave Lake.

B. Loranger, who headed the first expedition, will conduct the hunting operations again this year. He will take with him a number of men and the party will leave for the territory of the caribou migrations from Fort Smith, N.W.T., making his headquarters at the Lockhart River, where the caribou cross in millions and where the greatest number of wolves were destroyed last year. Several canoes are being constructed special for the expedition.

Name Will be Retained, But
Lessees Are New Syndicate

The lease of Pantages Theatre by the Pantages interests from the owners of the building having expired, a new syndicate, which will be represented here by E. D. Abery and J. W. Davis as managers, has acquired the theatre for a motion picture house.

The first film, "The Town That Forgot God," will be presented on Wednesday, and thereafter the theatre will be open with high class pictures at popular prices.

Dunlop & Foot, solicitors for the syndicate, announce to The Times that a company known as the Coliseum Theatre Company, Ltd., has been incorporated with $10,000 capital to conduct the enterprise, and has acquired the premises under a three-year lease.

The name of "Pantages" is well-known to the Victoria public, and although Mr. Pantages will no longer have any interest in it, he has agreed to allow the name to be retained for a time. If found desirable to change the title, that of "Coliseum" will be adopted.

The theatre was erected by McPherson, Fullerton, and R. T. Elliott, K.C., at an outlay of about $150,000, and opened in May, 1914. The building still continues under the same proprietorship. It has a seating capacity of 1,000, 420 on the lower floor and 580 in the balcony. The proscenium opening is 22 feet in width, while the stage proper is 28 feet in depth and 55 feet from side to side, those ample dimensions being designed for vaudeville performances. Special attention was given in its design to fire protection, ventilation and comfort of patrons.

Should Clean Crank Case Every Season

Dirt and Grease Clots Inner Workings But Is Easy to Remove

The crank case, no doubt, after a season of service will be full of sediment and it is therefore advisable to remove the lower half so that it can be thoroughly cleaned with kerosene and a stiff brush. Dirt, carbon and thickening of the oil over the winter months causes this sediment and for this reason a thorough cleaning is necessary and at the same time the oil strainer and the various oil leads should also have attention so that there may be no danger of an oil lead clogging and causing burnt oil bearings on a long trip. The plenty of kerosene to remove every particle of oil that may have congealed and also inspect the oil level gauge to make sure that it will function properly. Finally see that every bit of kerosene has been removed, as the slightest quantity will reduce the lubricating property of the fresh oil that will be used to replenish the supply.

OTTAWA REFUSES TO REMOVE HORSE BAN

Oregon Horses Not Allowed to Come to Vancouver Exhibition, Government Rules

The Federal Government has decided not to relax its present regulations forbidding the importation of horses into Canada from Pacific coast states which have been affected by foot and mouth disease, according to word received at the Department of Agriculture here.

Officials in charge of the Vancouver Exhibition are anxious to bring in Oregon horses to take part in the exhibition, but the Federal authorities are firmly opposed to any move of this sort. Hon. E. D. Rogers, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, has been informed in advance from the Federal Department of Agriculture.

The danger of foot and mouth disease infection still exists, the Federal authorities hold. At this stage, they declare, it would be inadvisable to allow any horses from Pacific coast states to cross the Canadian boundary.

Officers were elected as fellows at the half-yearly meeting of the Veterans of France held at the club-rooms last night. F. Cameron, president; W. Baum, vice-president; F. Andrews, second vice-president; F. Macdonald, treasurer; R. Martin, secretary; arms: P. Bowley-Burner, chairman of finance; R. McKenna, chairman of ways and means; J. Taylor, chairman of investigations; and R. Rogers, chairman of sick committee. Several applications for membership were received. A committee of five was named to arrange the annual picnic.

"HEALING" EVANGELIST BRINGS HOUSTON RELIGION

Houston, Tex., is "getting religion" on a wholesale scale. Every night Rev. Raymond T. Richey, "healing" evangelist, is crowding a tabernacle that seats 5,000 persons. Hundreds have been "converted." And hundreds more say they have been "cured" of physical disabilities. "Cripples" declare their limbs have been made strong again; the deaf assert they hear again. And there is up near the platform a great stack of crutches and braces left behind by those who have been "cured," as the photo on the right shows.

Has Cure For Tar Nuisance

Automobile Digest Suggests
Plan Which Would Be Boon to Motorists

The fresh tar nuisance on the highway can be eliminated. It is possible to prevent such damage if solid clips or sunk in sufficient quantities to absorb the tar are used. This, of course, is up to the contractor or the man who prepares the specifications.

Another remedy which is being more and more generally adopted is to tar one side of a highway under repair or original construction at a time, leaving the other side for traffic until the tar is in condition to drive over without the bespattering process following.—Automobile Digest.

AIR BRAKE FEATURE OF NEW MODEL CARS

Among the new features for 1925 models of a few makes of motor vehicles is the air brake. The demand for some such type of equipment has been stimulated by the wide use of heavy, high-speed trucks, and by the increase in women drivers, which has turned effects of engineer stoward reducing the muscular energy required to operate brakes.

ROSEMARY

Amid the tropics' misty heat,
Below the palm trees' rustling shade,
A haunting vision comes to me
Of mountains and a dreamy maid,
Where Tyndean's stream gleams bright,
Where radiant youth more radiant grows,
And air is sweet with rosemary
Hints of the child from distant snows.
One waft of the southern wind,
The tropic charm is swiftly sped,
The upland breeze is better far,
It suits the quick and not the dead.
The spur is in the mountain blast,
Dull sloth alone reigns in the sun.
He seeks the North and shuns the South
Who hopes to say his goal is won.

Into the attic

FEW youngsters to-day ever saw a horse-hair sofa. They wouldn't know what to do with a fire taper, carpet stretcher, or coal oil lamp. They couldn't braid rags into a rug, or wind yarn without tangling. But they know the how and why of typewriters, phonographs, telephones, automobiles; what happens when a push of the button gives light, or a kodak's flash fixes their image on paper.

Their education is as modern as the advertisements they see. They have no more use for the lamp and chimney of yesterday than you for the wick and tallow of the day before.

Advertisements induce such progress. They urge wide use that means improvement. They help you lift the out-of-date into the attic—rid you of the water buckets and soap kettles of slavery. They bring late improvements within your reach.

Read the advertisements regularly. Keep alert to the new.

Without advertising, you would never

POPULATION AND DEVELOPMENT

A REVIEW of the population statistics since 1800 issued by the United States Bureau shows an average increase of thirty per cent. in the ten-year periods up to the present time. In the first sixty years the average was well over that figure, in several decades running to 36 per cent., and never under 32. After 1860 it began to drop, the census of 1870 showing an increase of 22 per cent., in 1880 an increase of 30 per cent., in 1890 25.5 per cent., in 1900 20.7 per cent., in 1910-21.0 per cent and in 1920 14.9 per cent. The increase since 1920 has been proportionately greater than it was for a considerable time before, due to the post-war growth of immigration and the unusually low mortality, the total increase of population in the four years being nearly 2,000,000.

During what may be termed the settlement and colonization period of the republic from 1800 to 1880 there were many intervals of economic depression. On occasions there were riots, business failures and disturbances of various kinds in the larger centres owing to hard times. In the West there were numerous Indian wars. Yet the large increase of population, contributed mainly by heavy immigration, continued with very little variation. People kept coming in by the hundreds of thousands willing to take their chances in a new country. The Government was not expected to provide work for them or to enact legislation to help them make their way. All it could do was to let them come in. After that their future was entirely their own problem. Thus thrown entirely upon their own resources they spread all over the country, found their own niches and worked out their own salvation with what means and under what conditions they could find.

It would have been better in the light of subsequent developments if the United States Government had enforced immigration restrictions governing the selection of immigrants many years earlier. Its melting pot has operated with only partial success. But the country wanted people, settlement and development, and opened wide the gates.

This record contains several profitable lessons for Canada. We need people, settlement and development. Since Confederation our average increase in population in ten-year periods has been less than twenty per cent. We can not afford to impose restrictions upon any class of immigrants who are likely to become law-abiding, industrious Canadians. We can not afford to put up the bars because we have periods of economic depression. A big healthy immigration is the best tonic in the world for hard times. The development of a new country is not a voluntary process. It is the outcome of an urgent necessity.

WHAT KIND OF A SERVICE?

THE Colonist says the Senate has rendered the country a service in rejecting a number of bills for the construction of branch lines for the Canadian National Railways, the aggregate cost of which would have been $13,500,000. These it declares are what might be called "political lines" and it adds "without a doubt the management of the Canadian National Railways will be glad because of the Senate's action."

Our contemporary's estimate of the intelligence of its readers is its own affair, but its comment does not show much appreciation of their capacity to grasp what is going on or to form reasonable opinion. They, like the readers of every other newspaper in Canada, know that the entire branch lines programme of the Canadian National Railways was pressed for personally by Sir Henry Thornton and his aides, who verbally and in numerous communications informed the railway committees of both the House of Commons and Senate and members generally that the projected lines were necessary to the successful operation of the Canadian National system. Everybody knows that the high officials of the C.N. have been working vigorously for the adoption of that programme since the moment of its introduction in the House of Commons where it was passed with comparatively little controversy.

Several of the bills, by the way, were introduced originally by the Meighen Government which considered them to be as necessary as the Government which succeeded that of Mr. Meighen now considers them to be. Incidentally, it is worth noting that some of the bills were for branches into territory in which the Canadian Pacific Railway also is developing connections. Are the Canadian Pacific extensions also "political lines?"

Is the purpose of the majority of the Senate, composed mainly of Tories, to save money or to cripple the Canadian National system so as to force it into private ownership? A survey of the personnel and affiliations of that majority is enough to convince anybody of ordinary intelligence that this persistent rejection of the recommendations of Sir Henry Thornton has no other object than the demoralization of the Canadian National system under Government control.

Our contemporary observes that by its action in regard to these branches the Senate has "justified its existence." Would it have said the same if the Senate had adhered to its original determination to kill the measures for the construction of the Canadian National branches on this Island? The main branch authorized is a belated by many years—step towards the completion of the project on which Sir Richard McBride was elected by the people of this province fifteen years ago—with the ardent support of the morning paper—and concerning which there was a solemn contract between the people of British Columbia and the Canadian Northern Pacific Railway Company, the predecessor of the Canadian National Company, which was embodied in a statute of our own Legislature? Those bills were slated for destruction and they surely would not have been killed in the Senate if it had not been for the vigorous fight initiated by the Victoria Chamber of Commerce assisted by the Vancouver Board of Trade, for which, by the way, Sir Henry Thornton has expressed his hearty gratification.

WANTED, A POLICY

PEOPLE in Canada and people in Great Britain who look upon immigration and emigration as subjects in which they are not required to take any interest ought to know how the population of the Empire is distributed. Here is a little table which shows the density of that population to the square mile in various parts of the British Commonwealth:

England	701
Wales	296
Scotland	180
Ireland	134
Canada	2
South Africa	10
Victoria	17
Tasmania	8
New South Wales	7
Queensland	1
South Australia	1
Western Australia	1

These figures speak for themselves and serve as the basis of an article upon Empire settlement which Lieut.-Commander R. T. H. Fletcher, one of the most brilliant and promising younger Liberal members in the British Parliament, has just written.

This writer points out that out of more than one million unemployed in Great Britain there are something like 300,000 young men who have never had regular employment since the Armistice.

For six years these unhappy fellows have drifted about their native land trying to get work and failing. Commander Fletcher says "put the clock on three or four years and let us ask ourselves what they are going to be fit for, what will they be worth at the end of that time?" It is now or never with them; in a few years they will be beyond repair, and a drag, an expense, and a nuisance to the State for the rest of their lives."

The picture is not a pretty one; but the colors will not be washed out by talk.

To Commander Fletcher's observations may be added the prediction that unless these young men can be furnished with the means of obtaining a livelihood at an early date there will be trouble.

The painful part of the business to the British taxpayer is that he is finding the money for a huge weekly dole which is merely helping to bring about the very condition which Commander Fletcher fears.

Ordering trouble by paying for it heavily in advance is the ironical prospect.

Wanted, a policy to develop an Empire which these men helped to save!

OFFICIAL PLANT PAYS

IT will be consolation to the people of this Province to learn that a reorganization which took place at the Government printing office at the Parliament Buildings some time ago has resulted in a still larger profit for that Department in 1923.

This important bureau comes under the direction of the Provincial Secretary and for three or four years Dr. MacLean has been gradually drawing the Department nearer to the status of a commercial office.

There are obvious and well understood difficulties in running any print shop at a profit these days, and in the case of a Government plant they are by no means less numerous.

Seventy-five thousand Britishers, who had already bought their tickets, have been barred entrance to the United States under the new regulations. What is the matter with Canada, then?

Is it not a little strange that the supporters of the action of the Senate in killing bills for the construction of C.N. branch lines in productive territory, on the ground of "stern economy," in the next breath criticize the Government because it does not immediately embark upon a naval policy which would cost the country more than the railroad extensions would? Then in the third breath they attack the Government because, they claim, it is not active enough in settling our fertile areas.

WASTING THE PEOPLE'S TIME

From The Regina Leader
Both senators and members of the House of Commons seem to consult their own comfort first and the interests of the country second. They waste a lot of time in the earlier stages of the session and then they rush through much important legislation in the final stages without giving it due consideration. The members of Parliament should get out of that way of doing the business of the country.

Dr. Frank Crane
On "Crime Is a Disease"

(Copyright)

A STRIKING case of kleptomania occurred in Chicago recently. The wife of a millionaire was arrested for stealing.

She lived in a palatial home and had maids and butlers and other servants to wait upon her. She had no need for money, as her husband willingly supplied all she could reasonably spend, even for luxuries.

But a strange impulse obsessed her. She applied for a position as a maid in a strange house, and was accepted because of her refined appearance. This she did at several places. In each instance she looted the home during the absence of the family and carried the things away in her own automobile. A neighbor woman saw the maid going away with the sedan full of plunder and notified her employer. The kleptomaniac was arrested, and at police headquarters she broke down and confessed.

The woman was forty-four years old and had four children of her own.

Her husband, although dazed by the shock of seeing his wife a kleptomaniac, hurried to her side and declared that he would stand by her.

This incident is full of instruction for those who are capable of learning. It emphasizes the truth that crime is a disease to be cured and not an act which calls for retribution.

In such a case we already acknowledge its pathological character by giving it a medical name; kleptomania. We are recognizing that it is a mental disorder, something to be healed.

In former ages anyone who stole would have been seized and afflicted more or less cruelly.

Little by little the world is learning that vengeance, punishment and retaliation are nothing. Kerosene will not put out a fire.

Canada and Lausanne

When Mr. Evelyn Wrench, a well-known Old Country writer and Review contributor, wrote an article in The Spectator twelve months ago he pointed out that there were "three alternatives before Canada: independence, annexation to the United States, or free nationhood within the British Commonwealth."

Mr. Wrench was jumped upon at that time by a number of newspapers in Canada and Britain and literally told that he did not know what he was talking about. He now writes to The Spectator again and points out that what he said twelve months ago has now been said by Premier King in the House of Commons at Ottawa.

Here is Mr. Wrench's article:

The question of Canada's position in the British Commonwealth has been in the public mind lately as a result of the discussions in the British and Canadian Parliaments on the ratification of the Lausanne Treaty. Considerable space has also been devoted to the subject in the British and Canadian Press. Two or three times I have dealt with the matter in The Spectator, and it is because I feel that I did less than justice to the Canadian Government or to Mr. Mackenzie King that I desire to return to the subject again. In passing a tribute must be paid to Lord Beaverbrook for his share in dispelling, in The Daily Express, the mist of confusion which the attitude adopted by that journal during the controversy shows effectively how useful it is to have someone with an intimate knowledge of the Empire controlling one of the great organs of public opinion in this country.

FUTURE PROBLEMS

The reason why the present discussion revolves round the Lausanne debates in Great Britain and Canada is of such special importance is that it concentrates our attention on the two most vital problems which the Empire will have to deal with in the near future: (1) the status of the self-governing nations within the British Commonwealth; (2) the international status of the British Empire and its relations to foreign powers. Whatever may be the outcome of the present discussions concerning Canada—the nation which has the path towards nationhood in Greater Britain—it will establish a precedent for all the other Dominions, some of which may not yet feel that they will be able to stand quite so acutely as does British North America.

HAD SAID IT FIRST

Just one further comment before coming to the subject itself. When I wrote an article in The Spectator last year defining the three alternatives before Canada as independence, annexation to the United States or free nationhood within the British Commonwealth, I was taken to task by several Canadian journals and told in polite terms that I did not know what I was talking about, and that as far as Canada was concerned "all was well in the best of all possible worlds." And yet within a year of the appearance of that article we have the Prime Minister of the Dominion in a considered speech defining the three alternatives before the Canadian people as independence, annexation to the United States or "a more clearly recognized relationship as a self-governing nation within the Empire"—the last solution being the one he favored.

If the Canadian people complain of the nature of the comment in The Times and in the British Press before publication of the Parliamentary White Paper they have every reason to do so. Justice was done to Canada. All who believe that the future welfare of the British Empire depends in no small degree on the freedom of status among all the nations making up the British Commonwealth should appreciate the light Canada has been making.

A GROSS BLUNDER

The British Government in power in October, 1923, no doubt, the best intentioned in the world, made a gross blunder in deciding upon the British Empire representation at Lausanne without previous consultation with the Dominions. When Mr. Mackenzie King was informed of the proposed procedure he was confronted with a "fait accompli." The Dominions were informed that as a result of an agreement with France, the British delegation at Lausanne was to consist of two delegates. They were then asked whether they would consent to allow Lord Curzon and Mr. Horace Rumbold to represent the whole British Empire. As Sir Edward Grigg said in an able speech in the House of Commons, "The important thing was that they were given no choice, no alternative in the matter."

When the British Government agreed with France to limit the Empire's representation to two, it probably did not realize how much importance is attached overseas to the national status which the Dominions obtained as a consequence of the War. It is no exaggeration to say that from the Empire's standpoint one of the far-reaching results of the War was the equality with the Mother Country which the Dominions obtained and the international recognition of the fact. For as Mr. Mackenzie King pointed out in the Ottawa debates, "this equality status" which Canada has maintained long since, and which was accepted at Versailles, Washington, Geneva and the Hague.

FAR-DISTANT PROBABILITIES

The reason for the British Government's departure from the procedure at Versailles, and for its giving away the status expressly granted to the British Empire in the Covenant of the League of Nations, is commonly believed to have been due to French pressure. If the various sections of the British Empire were asked to represent the Empire at international conferences why not sections of the French Empire, such as Morocco and Algeria? Doubtless there was much in the French claim, and probably it will be recognized in the distant future when the outlying sections of the French Colonial Empire possess a similar equality to that of the self-governing nations within the British Empire. I am not dealing here with far-distant probabilities, but with conditions as they are. The essential fact therefore remains that in the Versailles Treaty—Canada, Australia, South Africa, New Zealand and India were accorded a definite status, and the French Colonial Empire was not.

As the subsequent discussions about Canada and the Lausanne Treaty, in which, doubtless, the British Government was the main factor, are in the light of the revelations of the above-mentioned White Paper. However, some people may wish that the Canadian Premier

In any profession which deals with the health of people the first principle is not price but helpfulness. Grocers Hold Big
Picnic at Chalet

Several Hundreds Attended Outing at Deep Cove

On Wednesday afternoon last the community grocers of Victoria held a joint picnic at Deep Cove, which was attended by several hundred persons. About thirty motor cars transported the pleasure-seekers to the scene of merriment, leaving the city at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The refreshment committee and the reception committee did particularly good work during the outing, the former in supplying the wants of the party in an unobtrusive manner, the latter introducing strangers to the many assembled and assisting in the programme of sports and entertainment.

The management of the Chalet, Deep Cove, took charge of the serving of the tea when the picnickers sat down for their meal in the open. Following the repast the prize-giving took place, and many beautiful were the awards.

The donations from the merchants of the city for the sports were conclusive of a particularly enjoyable evening.

Many youngsters present received prizes.

ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. W. H. Hovering of Hamilton Chosen as National President

Edmonton, July 12.—Mrs. W. H. Hovering was re-elected by acclamation president of the National Catholic League, and Hamilton, her home city, was chosen as the setting of the 1925 convention at the closing session yesterday afternoon. Other officers elected were: Mrs. B. C. McCann, London, Ont., first vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Duggan, Edmonton, second vice-president; Mrs. Matthew Ryan, Antigonish, third vice-president; Mrs. Mary McMahon, of Toronto, was re-elected honorary secretary, and Miss M. L. Quillman, of Niagara Falls, honorary treasurer.

His Grace Archbishop O'Leary, of Edmonton, was appointed honorary chaplain. Lady Hingston, Montreal, was appointed first honorary vice-president. Beautiful baskets of flowers were presented by the delegates to Mrs. Raoul Gabory, president of the Edmonton sub-division, and Mrs. J. J. Duggan, president of the Edmonton diocese. The convention was deemed the most successful in the history of the league.

Rev. Father Morton, of Winnipeg, was the speaker at the luncheon today. He urged the members to remember that they were doing double service in these early years by perfecting their organization and accomplishing excellent work at the same time. Considering this he advised them to "make haste slowly" in order that they might not overstep the bounds of their strength.

The league at the closing session decided not to make any pledge in regard to church extension work, but to encourage branches to take up this work locally.

AL FRESCO DRAMA
CREATES INTEREST

Many Out-of-Town Visitors
Expected For Oriental Drama

Victoria's al fresco drama, which is to be presented to the public July 18 and 19 in the beautiful old-world grounds of Sefton College, Rockland Avenue, is attracting very wide interest, not only locally, but also on the Mainland of British Columbia and in Washington, Oregon and even as far South as Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The play to be presented this year is "The Curse of Chirra-Poonje," by Charch Sultan el Osman. While the story is essentially dramatic it also lends itself to the lavish and richly Oriental setting which the producers are giving it. Besides a chorus and ballet of more than 200 dancers and singers, there are many leading characters. In some instances the costumes for the principals have been specially procured from the East, and being made of rich silks inlaid with jewelry, not only help very materially to create the necessary Oriental atmosphere, but are worth some thousands of dollars.

The play tells in movement and song the following story: A missionary from one of the southern states in India in his wanderings through the northern land robs the temple of Chirra-Poonje, taking back with him the great ruby and other jewels which he has torn from the image of the temple god. For this act, a terrible curse is pronounced on all the common folk of his country, the royal family and entourage being exempt from the curse in order that it would aggravate the majority of the people all the more. By only one means can the curse be removed, and that is by the self-sacrifice of the princess of the royal house.

The prologue shows the theft in the temple, the pursuit by the temple priests and the terrible curse of the high priest, solemnly proclaimed in conclave around the sacred fire on a portable altar.

Special Oriental music of a high order has been arranged by Mrs. A. J. Gibson, whose talent in this direction is so well known, and a special orchestra under Mr. Drury Fyvie, organizer and director of the symphony orchestra, will play between the acts and for the songs and dances.

The dancing will be a big feature of this production. There are sixty specially trained dancers divided into three groups: one group, with Miss Roberta Balcom as soloist; another group which has been trained by Miss Lillian Michaels, who will be the solo dancer; and a beauty chorus.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. B. C. McCann, London, Ont., first vice-president; Mrs. J. J. Duggan, Edmonton, second vice-president; Mrs. Matthew Ryan, Antigonish, third vice-president; Mrs. Mary McMahon, of Toronto, was re-elected honorary secretary, and Miss M. L. Quillman, of Niagara Falls, honorary treasurer.

There are four feature soloists: Mrs. Harry Briggs, Miss Eva Hart, Mrs. Arthur Gore and Mr. Kenneth Angus, all well known throughout British Columbia and in Seattle.

Between 200 and 300 people will compose the cast of this very spectacular play, which in addition to the powerful dramatic force of its plot has the added charm of pageantry and such a most perfect natural setting.

The play is the work of Charch Sultan el Osman, and one would almost hear him in the words of the author's ideas coincide with the beauties provided by Nature.

SMART WEDDING AT ST. MARY'S TO-DAY

Large Congregation Witnessed Marriage of Miss N. Turner and Mr. James Gray

Sweet peas in the pastel shades, syringa and other fragrant Summer blossoms transformed the interior of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, into a floral bower this afternoon for the wedding of Miss Nellie Ley Turner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Turner, "Balgrogan," The Uplands, to James Gray, son of the late Andrew Gray and Mrs. Gray of Victoria. A large congregation witnessed the ceremony.

Right Rev. the Bishop of Columbia performed the ceremony, the young couple standing beneath a bell of sweet peas and syringa which hung from an archway of Summer flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her imported gown of softest ivory velvet depended for its chic on the simplicity of its lines, being gracefully draped to each hip where the shirring were caught beneath silver embroidery. The veil was of tulle with velvet applique fell in soft folds from beneath a circlet of orange blossoms, and a bouquet of Ophelia roses and anemones gave the finishing touch to the bridal toilette.

Mrs. James Lawrie of Ottawa was matron-of-honor in a gown of peach georgette trimmed with silver ribbon, worn with silver shoes and stockings, and a bandeau of French flowers and silver ribbon in her hair. The bridesmaids were Miss Jeanette Turner, sister of the bride, and Miss Betty Gray, sister of the bridegroom, who were charmingly gowned alike in powder blue georgette, with silver shoes and stockings, and hair bandeaus of French flowers in shades of blue and silver ribbon. All three attendants carried bouquets of Ophelia roses, delphinium and cream sweet peas. Mr. Kenneth Raymur was groomsmen and the ushers were Messrs. Russell Turner and W. Hal-dane.

Miss Jean Dunbar and a number of other girl friends of the bride were responsible for the floral decorations in the church. After the ceremony a large number of guests repaired to the home of the bride's parents where Mrs. Turner received her guests in a smart gown of black tulle with blue and a becoming hat of black lace trimmed with a paste buckle. The buffet luncheon was served from a marquee on the lawn and an orchestra played selections throughout the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gray left on the 4.30 boat for Seattle en route to Jasper Park, where the honeymoon will be spent, the bride traveling in a smart gown of biscuit Roshanara crepe, trimmed with blue applique and self-colored soutache braid with which she wore a smart wrap of tulle and cloche hat of tulle and tabac georgette. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Gray will take up their residence at their new home on North Hampshire Road.

Ont. Mrs. B. C. McCann of London, Ont.; Miss Mary McMahon of Toronto and others.

In the presence of friends of the principals a nuptial wedding took place last evening at "Breadalbane," the minister's residence, when the Rev. Dr. Campbell officiated at a ceremony which made Miss Edith Violet Pearl Larsen of Cowichan the bride of Mr. John George Johnstone of Victoria. The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Helen Larsen, wore a becoming gown of dark blue gabardine with hat en suite, and was attended by Mrs. Edith Rundell. The best man was Mr. Samuel Rundell of Saanich. On returning from a honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone will make their home in this city.

Mrs. Ainslie Helmecken held her post-nuptial reception yesterday afternoon at the home of her mother, Mrs. G. A. Richardson, Moss Street, a large number of guests calling to extend their felicitations. Mrs. Helmecken, who wore her wedding gown of ivory charmeuse, was assisted in receiving her many guests by her mother, Mrs. Richardson, and her mother-in-law, Mrs. J. D. Helmecken. A color scheme of pink and white was reflected in the flowers used in the decoration of the reception room, while pink sweet peas and maidenhair fern centred the tea-table. Mrs. T. A. Brown, Miss Dorothy Borge, and the Misses Marjorie and Claudia Cullum assisted the hostess in serving the guests at the tea hour.

Event

Major R. M. Blair of the Seaford Highlanders, Vancouver, continued in his winning stride to-day at the Rifle Range, where he won the Extra Series Aggregate, the Grand Aggregate for Ottawa, the Extra Series at 200 yards, and took fourth and eleventh place in the Macdonald "Brier" and R.C.M.P. rapid fire matches respectively. Such a record is rarely equalled and seldom excelled.

Major Blair's shooting was the finest seen on the range for some time. He has proved himself to be the best shot amongst the many able marksmen at the butts this year. The weather conditions were very favorable to-day.

The afternoon final stages of the rifle meet were completed with the president's prize event coming last and terminating shortly after midday. Statisticians agree that this is one of the finest meets from the point of average, which has been held for some time, and the men have been shooting consistently and well.

The results of yesterday afternoon's and this morning's shoots are as follows:

To pick up 15,000 cases of liquor for trans-shipment to Mexico the Western Freighters Limited steamer Prince Albert docked at the Ogden Point piers last night.

The vessel started loading this morning and expects to get away Sunday evening for the South.

The Canadian Freighter brought 15,000 cases of liquor from the United Kingdom last trip, and of this total 15,000 cases were for shipment to Mexico.

NEW PRESBYTERIAN MISSIONARY BOAT FOR WEST COAST

THE BORDERLINE

TWO TRANSPACIFIC LINERS ARE CROSSING TOGETHER

Empress of Asia Racing and President Grant Speeding up; C. P. R. Liner Left Yokohama Twenty-four Hours After Admiral Oriental Liner; Both Expect to Dock Ahead of Schedule.

Once again a Canadian Pacific liner is running parallel with an Admiral Oriental liner across the Pacific.

The Empress of Asia is expected to beat the President Grant on the voyage now under way from the Orient.

The President Grant, Captain M. M. Jensen commanding, left Yokohama 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon while the Empress of Asia did not leave that port until 3 o'clock this afternoon exactly twenty-four hours behind the Admiral-Oriental liner. Despite this fact the C. P. R. liner expects to overtake its opponent and dock one day ahead of schedule. The Grant also expects to dock ahead of schedule.

On the Grant's schedule her arrival is posted for July 21, while the Empress of Asia is scheduled to arrive the same day. The latter vessel, however, reports that she expects to arrive on July 20, which is a week on Sunday.

In the past there was considerable competition for the trans-Pacific speed record. The Empress of Canada decided all disputes as to speed with a record of eight days ten hours.

The President Grant has a cargo of raw silk totaling over 4,000 bales valued at approximately $5,000,000. It is thought that a similar cargo is on the Empress of Asia.

In addition to the silk cargo the Grant has 1,500 bags of mail and a large consignment of tea and general cargo. Her passenger list totals 683.

I regret that the President Grant holds the speed record of the Admiral Oriental line fleet, having made the voyage from Yokohama to Victoria in nine days and one hour, in May of 1923.

YOUR HEALTH

MAKE SURE TO-DAY THAT YOUR CHILD SEES WELL

By Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

One-quarter of the pupils in schools have defective eyesight.

A few weeks ago the newspapers carried a report made public by the Eyesight Conservation Council of America. It revealed the startling fact that one out of every four school children throughout America has had eyesight, or at least is suffering the effects of eyesight.

Education, who is a member of the council, declares that defective sight is an important factor in accounting for the backwardness of many pupils.

I regret that I am not at hand the statistics of a survey we made in the public schools of New York City. After the discovery of the eye defects and their correction by appropriate glasses, it was little short of marvelous how rapid was the mental progress of the children. In a few cases children soon skipped classes, and all of the treated children showed improvement in their studies.

It is unfair to a child to permit him to suffer the humiliation of being called stupid when, as a matter of fact, the poor little chap can't see. This statement reminds me to say that every backward child should be given careful medical examination.

The eyes may be near-sighted, far-sighted, something easily remedied, when it is banished, the erstwhile stupid child may become a leader in his class.

At birth the eye is small, too short for perfect vision. As the body grows the eye grows. Eventually, if fortune smiles, the eye becomes just the right size and shape to afford perfect sight. Unfortunately, in some instances, the eye may be distorted in shape or it may overdevelop. In the one case there will be astigmatism, and in the other there will be near-sightedness.

Just as there are few persons who are absolutely perfect in form and feature, there are few eyes that are perfectly normal. But how are you to find out that your eyes are abnormal?

If you have always had poor sight, you just accept your condition as being all right. You may wonder why a friend can read a sign or tell time by a distant clock. But if you consider the matter at all it will probably not occur to you that your eyes are bad. You will conclude that your friend is a "freak."

Periodic physical examinations are desirable for old and young. Certainly the school child should be looked over at intervals to make sure, among other things, that the sight is good.

Our most precious possessions are our eyes. We should not abuse or neglect them. We should choose our reading material and our place for reading with the greatest care. Good light, good print and good hours will perpetuate good sight.

B.C. Poultrymen's Exchange Soon Will Cease Business

Vancouver, July 12.—The decision to wind up the B.C. Poultrymen's Co-operative Exchange was arrived at by members at a general meeting yesterday. The formal resolution, carried after three hours of discussion, was that the board of directors should be authorized to convert the assets of the exchange into liquid form as far as possible, and at a time when conditions are opportune to call another general meeting for the purpose of presenting other resolutions dealing with the matter.

Those other resolutions will formally wind up the change. That was clearly understood, and in fact the real purpose of the meeting. The procedure adopted was merely the most economical method of bringing about the winding-up of the poultrymen's co-operative organization.

Soke Women's Institute.—Soke Women's Institute held their July meeting last Tuesday. A discussion on "Better Schools" was the subject of the meeting. The flower display and exhibition of women's work arranged for August has been abandoned. There will be no meeting of the institute until September. Final arrangements for the singham and overall dance to be held Friday, July 11, were made.

San Jacinto Will be Renamed
Borderline; Plans Submitted
For Bids

The new Borderline freighter San Jacinto, which was bought from a firm in San Francisco and brought north recently, is to be remodeled and placed in service within the next three weeks, it was learned at McTavish Brothers, the local agents this morning.

The vessel is to be remodeled along the lines of the Fulton. The deck is to be changed in a manner similar to the Fulton and plans are being submitted for bids. The work will take from two to three weeks to complete. The vessel will be reconditioned and when finished will be able to carry 500 tons.

The Wakana, which ran opposite the Fulton, is being operated on the Puget Sound run. The San Jacinto, when she is commissioned will have her name changed. It is intended to rename her the Borderline.

OBITUARY

The funeral of the late Mrs. Yoshi Kameda, who passed away at St. Joseph's Hospital Friday morning took place this afternoon at 2:30 from the Sands Funeral Chapel. A large gathering of relatives and friends were in attendance and the floral tributes were many and beautiful. After the service the cortege proceeded to the C.P.R. wharf and the remains were forwarded to Seattle where cremation will take place.

The funeral of the late soldier Frederick Beattie Bellington who passed away at the Royal Jubilee Hospital on Friday morning will take place on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Sands Funeral Chapel. Dr. Clem Davies will officiate and interment will be made in Rose Bay Cemetery.

The late soldier was born in Scotland forty-seven years ago and had been a resident of this city for the past eight years, lately residing at 1109 Hillside Avenue.

Writing from Nanaimo under yesterday's date Assistant District Commissioner H. T. Ravenhill, in charge of the cycle tour of the Victoria Boy Scout Association, tells of the wonderful reception tendered to the picked patrol that left this city on Wednesday in the start of their 300-mile tour. He says, in part:

"Our trip is just one long succession of great kindness from all, every care and forethought for our comfort shown, and by all we are made to feel that this spirit of brotherhood is a very real thing and not just a myth. I only wish I could find adequate words to express myself."

"We made good progress to Colwood Hotel, where we called a halt, as one scout had trouble with one of his pedals, and so stopped on to sixteen mile bridge, where we ate our early lunch and had plenty of cold drinking water. A troop meeting was held and two patrols formed—Leons and Beavers. They decided to change patrol leaders each of the first five days and then elect permanent ones."

"And so on to the water trough at Mill Bay. We waited for about a quarter of an hour for T. L. Stark, Wain, and C. M. Dodd, who had been giving first-aid to a car in distress. The scout had by this time shed the offending pedal altogether, and rode to Duncan with only one. What it is to be a boy!"

"Just by Beaverboard Hall we found S.M. Crews and half a dozen Cobble Hill Scouts. Mr. and Mrs. Bird and one or two others waiting for us, and we lunched most sumptuously at the beach. It was our first experience of up-island hospitality. We had several photos taken and left at 1:30, amid many expressions of the pleasure with which our return visit was being anticipated: on arrival at Cobble Hill we formed up at the War Memorial and saluted the memory of our glorious Dead.

"And so on, by Cowichan Bay. We found a bathing place in the Kokalah river and just by Kokalah Station were met by D.C. Bieschler and a strong party of Duncan scouts on cycles. We exchanged greetings, and in to Duncan, where we all formed up and saluted at the beautiful war memorial. Then to the agricultural grounds for a sumptuous tea, after which we strolled round the town, and a bath in Cowichan River, and back to another wonderful spread. The district commissioner himself served everyone untrillingly. After supper the scouts played baseball."

"Then to the top of the mound for a council fire—without the fire (not allowed)—but with as much vim and fun as forty or more exuberant happy boys could make. We sang ourselves hoarse. About 9:15 I closed the fire in the usual scout fashion. The district commissioner and a large number of scouts turned out to wish us Godspeed and tell us they would look out for us on our return."

"We started a little behind schedule, had a bath at Oyster Bay and were welcomed at Ladysmith by S.M. Stephenson and a strong body of scouts and cubs. The Ladysmith Chapter I.O.D.E. personally served a lunch which made our boys open their eyes. The padre made one of his happiest speeches and the mayor welcomed us to the town—all just splendid. I tried to acknowledge their kindness, but what I lacked the troop made up when we gave our call. Our boys helped wash up and waited on their hostesses whilst I got the T.L. and two P.L.'s to write up the previous day's 'log.' The happy boys could make. We grouped with the local scouts and cubs at the war memorial."

"We left rather late. We were met about eight miles out by three Five Acres scouts, and got here about 5 o'clock, having been still further delayed by Dean's cycle shedding most of its back spokes and breaking the chain. It and Archie's are both being put to rights. Martindale met up—billetts arranged—and at 7 we all assembled with thirteen Nanaimo scouts and cubs and went down Western Fuel Co.'s No. 1 mine, a great experience for the boys. About 9:15 my large family returned to their billets."

Nurmi Wins His Third Olympic Championship

Defeats Ritola in 10,000 Metre Race by 500 Metres; Competitors Feel and Tatter as They Near Finishing Line; More Olympic Records Fall; Argentine Athlete Breaks, Hop, Step and Jump Mark; Canada Qualifies in Two Relay Races

Colombes, July 12.—Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish runner, scored his third Olympic triumph to-day when he won the 10,000-metre cross-country race by more than 500 metres from his countryman, Willie Ritola, with Earl Johnson, the United States negro runner, surprising the field with a great race which gave him third place.

Ten thousand metre cross-country race—Nurmi, Finland first; Ritola, Finland, second; Johnson, United States, third; Harper, Britain, fourth; Lavauz, France, fifth; Studenroth, United States, sixth. Time 32 mins 54.3 seconds.

This race saw many of the field finishing in a state of collapse after their run under the blazing sun, while others staggered across the line, several of them shoeless and utterly exhausted. The effects of the long grind seemed to take all but the leaders, the runner's feet about the track as they entered the stadium portal and having to be guided in the direction of the finish.

RECORDS STILL FALLING

In the heat of the 400-metre relay race, the old world's and Olympic records were broken by Great Britain, the United States and Holland. The Britishers set a time of 42 seconds, while in the sixth heat the United States runners lowered the record again, clipping 4.5 seconds off it.

After the final of the 10,000-metre individual and team race events the total points for the two leaders were: United States 19 1/2, Finland 12.

Canada qualified in the qualifying heats of the 400-metre relay and the 1,600-metre relay races, running second in both instances.

Olympic Stadium, July 12.—It was extremely hot to-day and this kept down the Saturday afternoon attendance in the stadium, the Parisians apparently preferring the coolness of the seaside resorts.

Bruneto, star Argentine track man, sprang the first sensation of the day by breaking the Olympic record in the running hop-step-and-jump with a mark of 15.42 metres, surpassing the record of 15.00 metres made by T. Ahearn, Britain, in 1908.

The Olympic record held by Ahearn was 48 feet 11 1/2 inches. Rainio, the Finnish star, jumped only 14.62 metres.

The British relay team broke the world's record in the 400-metre relay race with a mark of 42 seconds flat. The old world's and Olympic record was 42.5 seconds. Later in the day the Dutch team equalled the new record set by the British.

WRESTLING BOUTS

In the Olympic catch-as-catch-can wrestling contest to-day, Courant of Switzerland defeated C. W. Strack of the United States on points.

J. F. Spellman, United States, defeated Wilson of Great Britain on points.

All four men are light-heavyweights.

Bryan Hines, United States, defeated Diller of Belgium on points in the 123-pound class.

SUMMARIES

400 metres relay race—First heat: Two nations to qualify. First heat: France first, Sweden second. Time, 3 minutes 39 seconds.

Second heat: Great Britain first, Hungary second. Time, 42 seconds (equals new world's record).

1,600-metre relay: Two nations to qualify. First heat: France first, Sweden second. Time, 3 minutes 39 seconds.

Second heat: Great Britain first, Canada second. Time, 3 minutes 27 seconds.

Third heat: United States first, Switzerland second. Time, 3 minutes 27 seconds.

400-metre relay race—Fourth heat: Switzerland first, Italy second. Time, 42 1/2 seconds.

Fifth heat: Sweden first, Denmark second. Time, 43 1/2 seconds.

Sixth heat: United States first, France second. Time, 41 1/2 seconds (new world's record).

Paris, July 12.—The gate receipts for the 1924 Olympic games reached 4,500,000 francs with yesterday's meet at the Stadium. To-day's receipts and the receipts of the day to-morrow, with the Marathon race as a big attraction, are expected to bring the total over the 5,000,000 mark.

The tennis, rowing, swimming, wrestling, boxing and other events still left to be run off during the coming week are estimated as likely to bring the total receipts to between six and seven million francs.

Paris, July 12.—Canada, the United States and Holland will meet in the second heat of eight-oared Olympic rowing events.

The draw for the 4 events in groups Spain, Argentina, France, Great Britain and Belgium in the first heat, Spain, Australia and Italy in the third heat.

Paris, July 12.—Twenty-four nations, including Canada, are entered for competition in the Olympic swimming contests, beginning to-morrow. The races will be held in the spacious and fully equipped swimming stadium built by the city of Paris at a cost of 3,000,000 francs.

The Canadians entered are Clayton Brown and George Warkler, Turner Chapman and Clifford Chittell, of Toronto.

To-morrow's programme consists of a 1,600-metre free style elimination

Select Players To Play in Big Tennis Tourneys

Proctor, Gordon and McCallum to Compete in Vancouver This Month

Have Entered in Both Mainland and P.N.W. International Events

Victoria's premier tennis stars intend to make a strong bid for fame in the Pacific Northwest international singles and doubles, as well as the Mainland championships, which are to be staged jointly in Vancouver during the week of July 21-25.

The Victoria Lawn Tennis Club last night selected three players to contest for the honors. Johnny Proctor, the ace of the club in singles, will compete along with "Marsh" Gordon in this event, while Eric McCallum will pair with Gordon in the doubles.

It is expected that the Victoria players will meet with considerable success in this event in view of the squashing defeat handed the Seattle stars on their visit here last Saturday.

The victory of Proctor over Leon de Turenne, the first ranking star in the Pacific Northwest, assured Johnny of a long run in the tournament. He is playing a far better game this year than last and the club members are counting heavily upon his success.

The winners of the Pacific Northwest international singles and doubles are sent East to compete in the United States championships. Victoria has not gained this honor as yet but high hopes are entertained this year.

The Victoria players will compete in the Mainland championships as well. Proctor will try out in the singles, doubles and mixed doubles and also in the under twenty-one years' championship.

Proctor, Marshall and Gordon are all in top form. Gordon and McCallum showed great ability in their doubles here last Saturday against the Seattle champions, winning with ease.

MARJORIE RETURNING

Marjorie Leeming, whom many believe will win the Canadian ladies' championship at Toronto this afternoon, will be home to compete in the tournaments on the Coast. The members of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club are greatly elated over the success which their star has attained in the East. In all her games to date she has won with ease and it is expected that she will vanquish Mrs. Biddle, the Ontario champion, to-day.

Marjorie ranks as one of the two greatest players on the continent to-day. Her only rival is Helen Willis of California. Marjorie has defeated Mrs. Henry of California who is the closest rival of Helen's.

If Marjorie comes home with the Canadian title there is no doubt but that a movement will be started to send her to the Wimbledon championships next year.

As a result of the Hillcrests taking their game last night by default from Esquimalt they are still tied with the Garrison for the leadership of the Victoria Indoor Baseball League. In the Hillhursts of Calgary in the second inter-provincial game of the Connaught cup series, this afternoon.

The score in yesterday's game at Vancouver was Hillhursts United 2, Hillhursts 1.

In the game at Central Park between the Hillhursts and Prior's, the former won by a 13-6 score. A great number of errors by the hardware store nine was mainly responsible for their defeat.

At the Canteen grounds the Y.M.C.A. added another victory to their credit by trouncing the Naval Barracks 16-5. Taking an early lead at the start of the game they were never overtaken. Lewis, or the Y.M.C.A. put out a home run in the sixth inning.

Yesterday's game was anybody's towards the last and although Cumberland had the better of the play throughout the first half, Hillhursts came from behind in the second and nearly equalized. They were playing, too, with ten men as Nesbitt, their centre half, after twenty minutes of play, received two broken ribs. He retired for ten minutes and tried once more to play, but after three minutes collapsed again.

MINERS SCORE FIRST

Graham, centre forward for Cumberland, scored the first goal eight minutes after play started.

With half a minute to go in the first period, Turner scored Cumberland's second tally, and it was not until twenty-eight minutes in the second half had gone that Cartwright, Hillhursts inside right, came in, took the ball off Cont's foot and scored Alberta's only goal. From then on play was even with Calgary more than holding their own with ten men and lots of good football.

During the game Cumberland had fifteen shots on their opponent's goal, while the latter retailed with five. Cumberland were awarded six corners, while Hillhursts earned three. No corners were converted.

Canadian Soccer Eleven Scores a Sterling Victory

Jimmy Adam's Boys Defeat Pick of Australia at Adelaide By 4-1

Tourists Show Best Form to Date and Easily Disposed of Opposition

Adelaide, South Australia, July 12 (Canadian Press Cable).—Before 10,000 spectators Canada this afternoon scored a great football victory over Australia, when they defeated a representative Australian eleven four goals to one. It was the fifth test match of the tour and the last test scheduled, but as each country has won two and one match ended in a draw, it is possible that a sixth test game may be arranged in an effort to break the tie.

The Canadian team has not been seen to better advantage since it commenced playing in this country than in to-day's match. Each member of the team played sterling football. Noseworthy, in goal, was great and McLean and Anderson, the backs, were unbeatable. Canada's combination play was loudly applauded by the crowd and each player won his share of applause.

Wilson scored two of the goals to-day, and Linning and Stobart one each. Harley and Linning each won a hat for being voted the best players on the field.

Including test matches the Canadians have won ten games, lost five and six have been drawn.

Chicago, July 12.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis defeated Michele Romano, Italian challenger of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, in a grueling straight fall contest here last night.

At the end of the first struggle both men were exhausted. Lewis staggered into the ropes and fell to the floor. Romano could not rise from the mat and was dragged to his corner and revived.

In the second fall Lewis used five headlocks, throwing him heavily for the victory.

The contest some months ago between the two broke up in wild disorder. Lewis winning and being hoarse, along with the referee, with a shower of pop bottles. Several squads of policemen maintained order to-night.

WILD LACROSSE Game is Won by Vancouver Sons

Vancouver, July 12.—When the teams scrambled out of the melee at Con Jones' Park last night, the Native Sons were holding a well-deserved 6-3 verdict over their husky rivals from the North Shore Athletic club.

After one of the wildest exhibitions of amateur lacrosse witnessed at Con Jones' Park for some time, there was plenty of fast and thrilling lacrosse, but there were too many arguments, too much slugging, and too many exhibitions of the fist to make the game worth watching.

Two or three casualties resulted from the heavy and wild stick swinging in which the veteran, Corey Houch, was carried off the field unconscious as the result of a blow from Freeman's stick. It took nearly two hours to complete sixty minutes of actual play and the fracas wound up in semi-darkness.

Lord Nelson's Love
Affair is Told in Film at Playhouse

Moving picture patrons are treated to some of the most unusual scenes and settings ever presented upon the screen in "The Affairs of Lady Hamilton," the feature film attraction now showing at the Playhouse Theatre.

"The Affairs of Lady Hamilton" is based upon the last love affair of Lord Horatio Nelson, British Naval hero, and offers all of the pomp and splendour of Court Life which prevailed in those days, as well as a heart touching story of a woman's great sacrifice and inspiring love which was responsible for this great man's victory.

The mob scenes, where thousands and thousands of people were used, are wonderfully thrilling and realistic. The celebration following Nelson's victory at the Battle of the Nile is, according to those who have seen the production, one of the most lavish and beautiful photographic extravaganzas seen upon the screen for some time. All in all "The Affairs of Lady Hamilton" promises to be a film structure long to be remembered.

It is a Richard Oswald Production and features Liane Haid, one of the most beautiful women in the world, in the role of Lady Hamilton.

Broadway as Longest Street in World

Although Broadway, New York's great "White Way," is supposed to include ten or twenty hectic blocks devoted to theatres, cafes, dance halls and stores, it is as a matter of fact the longest street in the world. Its length is over thirty miles at the very least. Starting at Bowling Green, it shoots straight as an arrow through the Wall Street section, curves through the business and theatrical sections, then to the residential section, and finally to the end of New York City. But even then it continues through the country, as far as Tarrytown, thirty miles away, using its name.

Broadway of the midnight adventures lives in "Broadway After Dark," the Warner Brothers Classic of the Screen at the Dominion Theatre for a week's run. Its beautiful cast is headed by Adolphe Menjou, Carmel Myers, Norma Shearer, Willard Louis and Anna Q. Nilsson.

Gibson Convinced
There is Danger in Producing Films

Hoot Gibson, star of "40 Horse Hawks," Universal production, now being screened in the Columbia Theatre, has done many thrilling things before the camera, such as desperate adventure in automobiles and riding wild bronchos. Now, as one result of his experiences, in making his present comedy success, he is convinced that actors on the speaking stage suffer from considerable danger.

In "40 Horse Hawks" Hoot is, first, all the help around the village hotel and all the help around the village theatre. Later he goes to New York, where he gets a job as "supt" in a Broadway theatre. This picture was filmed in the big theatre at Universal City, and it was the first experience Hoot ever had on the speaking stage.

cables, but he has had no experience in dodging shining copper switches in the wall of a narrow entrance. Director Edward Sedgwick shouted for Hoot's entrance. There was a scuffle, a flash, a yelp of pain, and Hoot shot out as though thrown from a catapult.

Prehistoric Showing
Offered at Playhouse
for Last Time To-day

To-night will complete one of the most popular and amusing of all programmes yet staged by the Playhouse company. Reginald Hincks' conception of "Prehistoric Vaudeville" has carried all before it, playing to packed houses during the entire week. Whether or not it is a true representation of the type of humor that appealed to our ancient forebears is questionable, but that it makes a hit with present-day people, there can be no doubt. As Reginald says: "The night you'll be hearing for the last time the skirl o' the pipes."

Cuban Settings of Great Beauty in Capitol Picture

Cuba, the tropical gem of the Atlantic and famed for its marvellously beautiful vistas and exotic atmosphere, is the setting for much of the story of "Cytherea," Goddess of Love, a First National picture which is the current feature at the Capitol Theatre.

There it was that Joseph Hergesheimer, a leader in American literature, wrote the story which was a profound sensation when it was published.

And there it was that George Fitzmaurice, noted producer and director, filmed it for Samuel Goldwyn.

And that is why the picture, in addition to its ultra-excellent features, possesses a wealth of pictorial beauty that entrance you. The tropical scenery of the island forms the background of this unusual tale of a love that knew no bounds, that brooked no interference.

The brilliant players in the cast include Lewis Stone, Alma Rubens, Norman Kerry, Irene Rich, Constance Bennett, Betty Bronson, Charles Clarysse and Lydia Yeamans Titus.

Unusual Drama in
"Woman on Jury"
Coming to Capitol

A First National picture is to be the feature next week at the Capitol Theatre. Within the past year or two this brand of entertainment has proved the best being made, as witness such phenomenal successes as "Flaming Youth," "Black Oxen" and many others.

In this instance the picture is "The Woman on the Jury," and it is meeting with similar popularity, for seldom has such a vividly gripping drama of life been presented on the silver sheet. It possesses a strong theme and a heart punch that keep the spectators keyed up with excitement throughout the entire production.

"The Woman on the Jury," which was directed by Harry O. Hoyt from Bernard K. Burns' stage play of the same name, tells of the story of two women and a man. Both of them have been spurred by him; one of them tries to forget, but the other takes the matter in her own hands with disastrous effects.

"The Woman on the Jury" boasts one of the largest and most capable casts ever seen in a picture. Headed by Sylvia Breamer, it includes Lew Cody, Frank Mayo, Beulah Love, Mary Carr, Myrtle Stedman, Hobart Bosworth, Henry B. Walthall, Jean Herscholt, Fred Sterling, Stanton Heck and many others of equal fame.

In this production Miss Breamer has the role of a young bride, spending her honeymoon, serving on a murder trial jury, and she is responsible for most of the rich, dramatic moments of the film.

CHARMING SOPRANO AT CAPITOL

MISS BELLE McEWAN

One of the warmest receptions accorded to a vocalist for some time was received by Miss Belle McEwan at the Capitol Theatre this week.

Miss McEwan is no stranger to this city, where she has sung on several occasions. Vancouver is her home town, coming to that city from Scotland. In possession of a robust soprano voice with a surprising range and volume Miss McEwan has found favor before musical audiences all over the continent.

Her career commenced in amateur concert recitals from which she speedily won higher recognition and took part in many of the leading musical comedies of the last few years. From the stage to the concert platform in higher musical circles, Miss McEwan made rapid strides.

For the past few years she has been the pupil of Madame Clara Novello Davies, New York, and prosecuted her studies to such success that her voice won for her appearance before the Verdi Club at the Waldorf Astoria on the occasion of the Enrico Caruso Memorial and at other distinguished musical gatherings.

Miss McEwan adds a charming personality and an entire lack of artificial mannerisms to an exceptionally clear soprano voice. Her reception at the Capitol this week has been pronounced.

LIFTING OF BARRIER
MEANS GREAT INFUX

Many Were Awaiting Order
Lifting Necessity of Fumigation Baths

Although the abolition of the fumigation baths for tourists from California was only announced this week by neighboring states, the increase in travel to the Northwest that will result is already referred to by Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau representatives at Seattle, Portland and Spokane in their reports to the bureau.

Lists of visitors contemplating visiting this city sent by the representatives of the bureau were, up to the lifting of the regulation, larger than previous years, but they now have nearly doubled. The lifting of the "order of the bath" means the removal of the last obstacle in the way of a record-breaking influx to Victoria, they write. Registration at the Victoria office support this contention. The inquiries for literature of Victoria and Island have been so numerous this year that it has been impossible to meet them.

From remarks of visitors calling at the bureau it is apparent that many are here as the result of the advertising campaign conducted during the winter months. Twelve families arrived in the last two weeks from the Old Country to settle in or near the city, each of the families having come after correspondence with the bureau. With the tourist season approaching the peak, the bureau is also giving a great deal of attention to its activities for settlers, many of the visitors to the city at present being regarded in the light of future residents.

Musical Notes
By GEORGE J. DYKE

There are three women in the States who have the entire management of permanent symphony orchestras.

Pietro Mascagni has recently said, "I shall not write again. I have written a great deal, but I need rest there of writing new operas."

Perhaps the time will come when through some compelling inspiration the great Livornese composer will again hand down to posterity one of his dynamic operatic creations.

San Francisco's opera season is assured for 1924-25. A recent drive has netted $125,000 for next winter's opera productions.

The three great periods in the progress of music's history may be set out thus:

The Ancient, to 900 A.D.; the Medieval (middle age), from 900 to 1600 A.D.; and the Modern, from 1600 A.D. to the present day.

The first civilizations as seen in their paintings and sculptures, when examined had some form of music in their daily lives. The art of music was practiced in the ancient times of Egypt, Assyria, Babylonia, Arabia, India, China, Japan and Greece. Of these, the Greeks are the most important.

Europe will witness tremendous music activities next season.

Lionel Tertis, an Englishman, is acknowledged to be the greatest player in the world. His recitals this side of the Atlantic, during the past winter, were magnificent.

A form of pipe organ has been found in the ruins of Carthage. Its date is estimated about 2,000 years ago. Organs of the ancients were made of terra cotta, with a kind of pipes and pedals of wood. Another remarkable find was a lot of ecoanetes, presumably used by the beauties of those far-off days.

Our music columns, three years ago, marked down for success Miss Isabelle McEwan, who is completing a two-weeks engagement at the Capitol in this city. This young singer not only possesses a beautiful vocal organ, and abundant natural talents, but her intellectuality, well-balanced ambitions, and close alliance to her vocal studies and teacher, Madame Clara Novello Davies, now of New York, who, by the way, is extremely proud of her pupil, will assuredly carry her to those high vocal heights to which she aspires. Since leaving here three seasons ago she has been studying with her New York teacher; has sung of musical comedy; has been understood to two prime donnas; accompanied Madame Davies to Europe; and has just completed an eleven weeks engagement at the Strand in Vancouver. So enthusiastically has she been received by Vancouver audiences that she has a further engagement lasting for seven weeks at the mainline cinema house, after which she goes again to New York for further study with her distinguished teacher. Miss McEwan is planning to go to Italy in the Summer of next year.

Rossini, after hearing at Paris a "Tannhauser" performance, was asked what he thought of the opera. His reply was, "There are some pretty movements, but some dull quarters of an hour. It is music one should hear a number of times. I am not going again."

Anna Pavlova is to visit the Capitol City next season on her way to Australia, a country this great artist has never visited.

STATES CASE FOR SEPARATE CHARTER

Mayor S. J. Farmer, M.P.P., of Winnipeg Here on Visit
Is Strong Advocate of Public Ownership of Utilities

Municipal reformers here who sigh for a separate charter are cautioned by Mayor S. J. Farmer, of Winnipeg, who is staying at the Strathcona Hotel on a holiday, that there are often difficulties in a charter which handicap a council, and entail long waiting for legislative adjustment.

The Mayor is in an especial position to know the difficulties, in view of the fact that he has also been for two years a representative of Winnipeg in the Manitoba Legislature, and is the channel through which charter amendments of the city have to be adjusted by the Legislature. Quite as much delay is occasioned as arises in setting machinery to work through the Union of B.C. Municipalities. As the council, he instances, had to wait for a sitting of the House for power to regulate the control of gasoline in dry-cleaning establishments. As the council, he instances, had to wait for a sitting of the House for power to regulate the control of gasoline in dry-cleaning establishments. As the council, he instances, had to wait for a sitting of the House for power to regulate the control of gasoline in dry-cleaning establishments.

Winnipeg, under its labor administration, has made considerable headway recently with the policy of hydro-electric sources. In the supply of light and power it is in competition with the services of the Winnipeg Street Railway Company, both using the same locality, and the city is now going into the central heating system. The city was exceptionally pleased owing to the fact that it had a stand-by plant for emergency service to consumers, which was by the nature of things generally idle. Now by law, power has been given to extend its equipment and lay out the necessary connections for heating of buildings. Owing to the long winter in Winnipeg, a service of this kind should be greatly appreciated, Mayor Farmer said. The telephone service in Manitoba is provincially owned, so that practically the only public service not supplied by the city is that of the street railway, and public opinion, the Mayor says, favors its acquisition at the expiry of the franchise. Winnipeg and neighboring municipalities are components of the Greater Winnipeg water district, which is managed by a board of which the Mayor of Winnipeg is ex-officio chairman. A stand-by plant to protect water service also exists, and as the city also has a high pressure system for fire protection, it is proposed to unite these emergency services into one system, effecting great economies in the future, while protecting the citizens against breakdowns of the essential services.

FAVORS PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION

Mayor Farmer's name has occupied a large share in the newspapers as a labor leader in the city which has gone farthest of any large city in Canada into municipal ownership, and as a champion of public ownership he owes his last victory at the polls. He is in favor of proportional representation both in Provincial and civic affairs, and both offices he holds were won under those circumstances. Winnipeg has proportional representation by the Legislative, returning ten members, and Manitoba is now introducing the single transferable vote for contests in one-member seats. In the city various wards have under proportional representation been grouped into three, half the council personnel retiring annually.

The Mayor, who is an accountant by profession, is paying his first visit to Victoria. He called on Mayor Hayward yesterday afternoon.

Tourists Are Attracted by Automobile Camp Here

IDEALLY LOCATED PARK AT GORGE BOASTS DISTINCTIVE CHARM

Evergreen Campsite by Gorge Waters Wins Praise From Tourists

Cars From Nearly Every Province in Canada and State in the Union Have Sought Sanctuary in Shade of Sheltering Trees at Curtis Point; Swimming, Tennis, Boating, Dancing and Complete Equipment for Campers Have Helped it to Win Extensive Popularity.

DUST covered, travel stained and weary from miles of driving in the blazing sun, taking and giving the dust to an endless procession of cars from California, Washington, Arizona or Idaho, the tourist who calls at the Victoria Auto Camp at Curtis Point turns from the road along a shaded avenue of towering chestnut trees into a vision of verdant lawns bordered and dotted with prolific flowering beds into a retreat that even the graphic descriptions of friends he may have who have visited the camp have failed to do justice.

The emerald waters of the Gorge rippling sweet cadences which take the place of the incessant hum of the motor, provide a background which only nature could picture. Sweet scented pines and balsam provide shade over ideal camping sites without hiding the enchanting view of the water and though only a hundred yards from the main highway, the auto tourist is in a sanctuary as enticing and appealing as he would be miles away from civilization in the heart of some of the island's tallest timbers or dense bush.

THE NUMBER GROWS

With this delightful prospect it is not to be wondered why the procession of motorists come from California, Washington, Idaho, or other states of the United States and even from Hawaii wending its way from the monotonous sunshine to the cool, alluring playwood Northwest with its waterways, channels and lakes and breezes coming from the snow-capped mountains. Automobile tourists are finding the Pacific Northwest this year to a greater extent than ever they have done before. And Victoria is drawing its quota. In the same measure that Vancouver, Seattle and Tacoma is reporting an increase in its Summer guests so is Victoria, and Victoria is not only winning more friends every year, but many who with last year memories of contentment and charm still fresh in their minds, have sought the same pastoral sanctuary this year as they did the previous year.

WELL EQUIPPED

What nature has not provided has been supplied at the Auto Camp until it is as well equipped with conveniences for campers as any auto camp in the world. Although it has only been established three years, it has been improved each year with hot and cold showers, bath houses, community camp stoves and individual camp stoves, tennis court, swimming tanks, a well stocked store with fresh milk, bread and other supplies always on hand and virtually everything else the camper may need available there is hardly one thing another camp boasts of that the Victoria camp does not possess.

COVERS AN AREA OF FIVE AND A HALF ACRES

The area allowed per car is twenty feet by thirty feet. The sanitary conveniences consist of spacious buildings at the extreme Eastern and Western points of the camp. There are two large kitchens each furnished with large cooking stoves and both tapped with cold water, the larger kitchen being furnished with up-to-date sinks and hot water tapped from a large galvanized tank connected with the kitchen stove. The structure which houses the main kitchen equipment also consists of two departments for hot and cold water showers (one each for gents and ladies). The whole flooring of the structure is of cement and the drainage facilities excellent.

SHOWERS

The camp possesses city water which is available at fourteen convenient places in different places in the camp besides the supply at both kitchens. Within a large bathhouse on the shore of the camp property there are fitted up ablution rooms capable of accommodating the one fourteen ladies and the other fourteen gents. Accompanying the ladies' compartment is a bath room with bath and also shower connections. Adjoining the men's room there are two compartments fitted with cold water showers and three dressing compartments for men bathers. Tables and benches and individual camp stoves complete the equipment.

Even More English Than the English, Says U.S. Publisher of Victoria

Victoria's old world charm is frequently referred to by campers at the Auto Camp. Some U.S. visitors from eastern points have even gone so far as to look forward to their visit because they hope to send back letters with an English postmark. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., a victim to the island's charms, describes it as even more English than the English themselves and in an article in the Los Angeles Illustrated Herald writes:—

"In Victoria one is forcibly impressed with what we mean by the term progressive Americanism. Never was there a spot on the globe for which God has done so much. The scenery is unsurpassed. Bordered by the snow capped Olympics, surrounded by the waters of the straits of Juan de Fuca, dotted here and there by well timbered lakes, Victoria can certainly claim its birthright as a mecca of tourists."

"It is said to be the only English city out of England. In fact some say it is even more English than the English themselves. Lovers of the old country here have built themselves the English type of home surrounded by well-cared-for lawns, carefully trimmed hedges and well preserved rose gardens. Everybody seems to be contented and happy."

"Victoria has retained its beauty, its quaintness, its individuality and has developed into a vacationing place for the once villages of Los Angeles and San Francisco."

Unexcelled Swimming Facilities Offered at Victoria Auto Camp

Swimming facilities at the Victoria Auto Camp provide one of the greatest appeals to the campers. So few camps, tourists point out, offer more than a place to park and accommodation for cooking that a camping where there is a properly marked off swimming course, diving platform, a beach for the youngsters, boating and canoeing, tennis and even gymnastic apparatus that one offering these features stands out above the rest.

The Vancouver Island Athletic Association generously throws open its quarters for the use of the campers; invites them to use the logged off swimming course. Incidentally the association invites the campers to the regular dances they stage on the arbor over the water to the strains of a popular jazz orchestra. These open air twilight dances linger in the memory of some of the San Francisco and Los Angeles visitors unused to the long balmy evenings that Victoria enjoys.

An added feature this year is the bathing beach for children. Before the camp opened this Summer scowloads of sand were spread on a logged-off space for the benefit of the children who come to the camp. The shallow water which during the whole of July, August and September is so warm that youngsters can stay in for hours at a time has become highly popular with the small bathers. The older swimmers, too, are charmed with the Gorge waters. There are few Summer resorts where such facilities are available. Beside the tank there is a large expanse of water free from currents or dangers and as calm and blue as a silent lake. There is one great difference, however. Where the lakes may contain chilly waters from snowcapped mountains the temperature of the Gorge is what one would look for at the sun-kissed South Sea Islands.

Automobile Camps Have Become Essential Part In Life of Every City

Of Over Fifty Camps in the Pacific Northwest Victoria Offers Attractions Which Few Others Possess; "Best in the West" Say Guests Who Are Now Listed Among the Many Who Pay Annual Visits to Curtis Point Each Summer.

WITHIN the short space of three or four years automobile camps have become as essential to any city as the moving picture or theatre. Three years ago they were more or less of a novelty. Parking sites off the main highway with perhaps running water laid on were set aside, but how they have developed is shown by the fact that there are now fifty-one auto camps in British Columbia, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Wyoming, Washington and Utah. In a table prepared by the Pacific Northwest Tourists Camp Conference nearly all now answer yes to the following questions: water, light, fuel, stoves, toilets, police protection, laundry, wash racks, showers, bathhouse and telephone.

The establishment of the auto camps is proof that the Northwest realized the value of the tourist trade to a province or state, trade which was estimated in British Columbia last year in Dominion statistics as being worth $38,000,000 to the province. Blank clearances increased during the Summer and individual instances which stores can quote by the dozen emphasize the value of a tourist camp to Victoria.

Among all the auto camps of the Northwest Victoria is fortunate in having that distinctive touch which makes it stand out prominently. In the first place it is by the water. In the second it is on an island and being on an island secures only the genuine tourist.

From other camps come reports of a new menace with the establishment of the auto camp, "the tin camper" or "the Ford gypsy." With a Ford car that will run selling as low as $75 in the United States, the auto camps have opened up possibilities for the carefree wanderer answering the call of the road. They travel from one part of the country to another, usually heading where the weather most appeals. In the old days they might be gypsies. In modern days they style themselves auto campers. A day or two of work here and there provides for gasoline and other simple needs and then they are on their way again.

Victoria, however, is free from this type of camper. From $4 to $5 in ferry fees is the obstacle which keeps them away so that at Curtis Point the real auto camper for whom auto camps are made is the only kind of guest.

From their appearance, however, it is impossible to tell the millionaires from the hot carrier. Where a few years ago Victoria gazed at the girl or woman in khaki breeches to-day it accepts them as a matter of course as visitors to the auto camp. The convenient khaki duck suits are the standard for all auto campers or other vacationists. The only difference between one camper and another now is in the car and the camping equipment but usually all claims for distinction fade away at an auto camp. All join cordially in tennis games, swimming parties, at the evening dances or impromptu swimming galas. There are individual camp stoves but the big community stove still retains its popularity. Conviviality is supreme. The many youngsters in the camp with the swimming beach an attraction, speedily make friends and there are very few campers who have the time to spare who do not apply for an extension of the seven days time limit.

Last year the traffic was more than double that of 1922. There were 1,515 cars and 5,059 guests. Up to Wednesday of this week there were 497 cars and 1,534 guests as compared with 359 cars and 917 guests up to the corresponding date last year.

What visitors think of the camp is shown by some of the notations on the camp register. Dr. James Chisholm, Everett— "A most enjoyable vacation of twenty-one days in the most beautiful and picturesque camp of the Pacific Northwest, where marked kindness and courtesy extend a perpetual invitation to the Summer tourist."

W. Wallace and family, of Seattle—"Best in Northwest."

C. T. Dolan, Chicago—"Wonderful scenery and a nice park."

A. F. Johnson, Washington, D. C.— "It has been a great service to camp here, everything perfect for service and courtesy."

W. D. Owens, Seattle—"It is with regret I leave the camp. The service is unexcelled."

H. W. Follick, Seattle—"The most beautiful camp we have ever visited. The most courteous treatment."

SAW ITS POSSIBILITIES

Previous to the camp being taken over three years ago it was used by the Vancouver Island Athletic Association for their Summer swimming quarters. The Association built measured off swimming tanks, diving platform and boards and spacious decks for those who delight in luxurious sun baths. Lush grounds from the Association for the first year, the trustees appointed by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau saw its possibilities. Their verdict that it was the most desirable spot that could be chosen for an auto camp was strengthened by the encomiums of the visitors. Last year they recommended the city take a lease on the property, and the recommendation was accepted. This year the trustees, Frank Waring, W. C. Smith and H. P. Johnson are acting in conjunction with members of the City Publicity Bureau, Alderman Woodward, Andrea and Ker. The trustees take a pride in their voluntary duties and have gone to the extent of taking off their coats before the camp opened for the

FIFTY-SEVEN CARS

His biggest day this year was last Saturday when he registered fifty-seven cars and there is every indication that he has not yet reached the peak of registration. F. W. Tuffrey, at Portland, O. Hollingsworth, at Spokane, H. Palmer, at Seattle, and W.

Brazier, at Vancouver, are all singing the praises of the Victoria Auto Camp, and literature sent by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau to all parts of the world tells people about it. The registrations this year to date are already in excess of those of previous years and it is possible that by the end of the season the total will be more than doubled. Many who come for five days stay for ten. Others leave and come back again before the season is over while others again are on the list of annual visitors.

DODGE IS POPULAR WITH VISITOR HERE

Tells Remarkable Story of Car's Performance on Prairies

Approximately one-seventh of all cars visiting the Victoria Curtis Point Motor Camp this year have been Dodges, according to a statement made to-day by A. E. Humphries, proprietor of the local agency for this popular automobile, after careful investigation. The great number of Dodge cars on the road is easily explained, asserted Mr. Humphries, since of the last million Dodges built, 99 per cent are still on the road and giving satisfaction to their owners.

The assertion that a Dodge car never wears out may be exaggeration, but Mr. Humphries tells an interesting story of the behavior of one of these wonderful four cylinder cars.

Years ago, Mr. Humphries was a dealer in this make of car in Lethbridge, Alberta, and there he was possessed of many Dodge motors in all sizes and conditions. One of these cars he received from a farmer in a trade transaction, which had run over 35,000 miles over prairie roads, which, he says, are not like those of Victoria. This car Mr. Humphries sold to George MacLean, who was a fire-engine driver when Mr. Humphries was chief of the department.

Mr. MacLean arrived in this city yesterday from Lethbridge, and is staying at the Victoria motor camp for several days. The sequel of the story comes from his lips.

"I drove that Dodge for 70,000 miles, and I used it. I went over some of the worst roads in the country, but that machine stood up under the greatest strain. Then when I wanted a new car I bought a Dodge sedan, which I have brought with me to Victoria, or rather, which brought me. I sold my old car to a taxi driver and the last I saw of him in Lethbridge, he had already traveled a known mileage of 102,000 miles, and is still on the roads. The performance is a remarkable achievement and speaks volumes for the reliable qualities and upstanding mechanism which is a part of Dodge.

Mr. MacLean, the visitor from Lethbridge, says that Victoria is one of the finest places he has ever seen from the tourist's point of view. Its scenery is unsurpassed anywhere in America, he believes, and through his tour of 1,000 miles of roadway in the Pacific Northwest, he has not come to any city its equal in beauty or hospitality.

This tourist has a word of hearty praise for the Curtis Point Motor Camp. "I intend to make this tour of the Island a quick one," he asserted, "but I am going to spend our days at least at the motor camp. My family is enchanted with the place."

Mr. Humphries is satisfied with the trend of business in Victoria, and in the new Dodge model, equipped with balloon tires, and every modern convenience. This car is one of the most attractive on the market, and may be viewed at A. E. Humphries' garage on View Street, above Vancouver, where the local dealer welcomes the public.

CAR PRODUCTION IS ON INCREASE

Chrysler Demand Exceeds Supply; Maxwell Sales Running at High Average

Production of the Maxwell-Chrysler-Chalmers organization for the first five months of 1924 was 15.4 per cent higher than for the corresponding period in 1923, it was learned yesterday by the local agents for these cars, Thos. Plimley and Sons. Volume of business in dollars for the same period was 18 per cent higher than for the same months last year. Though the unprecedented demand for the Chrysler Six was contributed considerably to this material increase, Maxwell production also showed a substantial gain over the same period last year. Maxwell closed car production averaged 54.4 per cent, compared with 24.5 per cent for the similar period a year ago and 37.5 per cent for the entire 1923 year. Chrysler output to date has averaged 47.5 per cent closed cars. The high Maxwell ratio is due largely to the great popularity of the good Maxwell club sedan and club coupe, both enclosed models, whereas the lower Chrysler ratio is caused by the tremendous popularity of the Chrysler roadster, for which demand has continued to be considerably in excess of an unusually large production. Officials of the corporation expect the Maxwell to register greater sales gains during the remainder of the year. Stocks of Maxwell cars in dealers' hands average approximately the same per dealer as at this time last year. Chrysler stocks in dealers' hands are entirely sold, demand for Chryslerers exceeding supply throughout the country.

During June 2213 was collected in campers' fees at the Curtis Point Auto Camp, making a total revenue to the end of June of $467, and at the rate campers are coming in this month, July will swell the total by possibly another $500. There is every reason to presume that the camp will show a profit at the end of the year. The accommodation has been taxed to a greater extent this year than any of the two previous Summers that the camp has been open, nearly sixty cars being parked at the camp some days.

The coming of schools in the United States has seen the influx that was generally predicted and among those who have come this year are several who are making a return visit. Others have written to say they will pay another visit to the Gorge site this Summer among them being Dr. (Miss) Drake, of Seattle, who came last Summer with a complete camping equipment carried on a two seater car. Miss Drake annually pays a visit to Vancouver Island, and spends three days at the auto camp and then tours with her car and out-

What Attention to Give the Transmission Gears and Rear Axle

Among the last of the units on your car that require attention at the beginning of the touring season, are the gears in the transmission case and rear axle. Fortunately these parts rarely give any trouble and require attention only about once every 2,000 or 3,000 miles, that is, if the gear box and rear axle casings are oil tight. If these are leaking, then they will require attention much oftener. Generally at the beginning of the cold weather, the wise motorist drains off the heavy oil he has been using in these units during the summer, and replaces it with a much lighter oil for the colder weather. If heavy oil is used in cold weather it becomes very stiff and thick and absorbs quite a large amount of power and at the same times makes gear changing a little difficult. For the summer you need to use a fairly heavy oil to cushion the gears, so that the first thing to do is to drain out the old oil from both gear case and rear axle, and replace it with the proper grade of lubricant for the summer.

First remove the drain plug you will find at the bottom of the gear box and drain off all the old oil, then replace the plug and pour in about a quart of kerosene. Take a good stiff brush and remove all the old oil from the face of the gears, etc., then drain off. If you have noticed any noise in the gear box, now is the time to find out what is wrong. Carefully examine the teeth on the gear wheels to see that none are broken or chipped, and at the same time feel if there is any play in the bearings of either the main or the lay shaft. If the bearings of these shafts are worn badly, the lubricant will leak out of the gear box and the gears will soon become very noisy.

If, however, all gear teeth and bushings are in good shape, then fill up with fresh oil. If possible consult the instruction book you receive with your car to see what kind of oil to use and what height to keep it in the gear box. This is usually up to about the level of the lay shaft. When the gears are revolving they throw up enough oil to lubricate the gears and main shaft bearings. Do not on any account fill the gear box to top with lubricant.

It is a good idea while you have the kerosene handy and are on the job, to scrape off all the old dirty gummy grease from the sides of the gear box, then run all bolts to see that they are tight and that there are no oil leaks.

The Rear Axle gears require about the same attention as those in the Gear box. Drain off all the old oil and fill up with fresh oil to the level of the top plug. Be very careful not to put too much oil in the back axle or you will have trouble with it working out along the axle shafts and so on to the brakes and wheels.

Fully 50% of all back axle and gear box replacements are caused by the carelessness of the owner in letting the oil in these units get too low or in using the wrong kind of lubricant. If you use an oil that is too heavy, the gears track in it and when the car is going at any speed very little oil reaches the bearings and gears. The result is that these bearings and gears are not properly lubricated and run hot then wear commences and before you know where you are, you have an expensive repair bill to pay. Consult the service manager of the service station for the car you drive. He will be glad to tell you the best grade of lubricant to use and how high to keep it in the gear box and rear axle. Follow his advice and you will find that your car will run quieter and better and replacements in these units will not be required until the car has run at least 20,000 miles and perhaps even more.

fit, pitching her tent wherever her fancy leads her. Dr. James Chisholm, of Everett, is again coming with his family mainly for the swimming which they all apparently enjoy so much. The doctor made many friends at the camp last year. As in previous years the visitors are loud in their praise. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Moe, of Portland, who were at the camp this Summer, took the trouble to write on their return, praising the site and the service provided. They also make complimentary reference to the new caretaker, W. H. Hadley. "Too much credit cannot be given to him," they say. "His pleasing personality and ceaseless efforts in attending to the comforts of the campers from morning until night make a big hit." Mr. and Mrs. L. Gindman are paying a return visit from California. They have already spent ten days at the camp and plan to take a bungalow near the Gorge and stay for the remainder of the Summer.

Service Aids Salesmanship

Service, because of its vital importance to the continued operation of a motor vehicle and its direct relation to sales is now being given the consideration it should have had years ago. What is service? It has been defined as an "altruistic desire to assist" people with the ability and facilities to render an assistance necessary to fill an obligation, created through the merchandising of an article or unit. This plan of charging for service means that the cost of repair operations have been predetermined and permit after inspection, but before actual work is done, to estimate the repairs required and the cost of same. It appears to be the only satisfactory solution of what has been one of the most difficult problems of rendering automotive transportation service and a means of eliminating complaints as to the size of repair bills.

CUSTOMERS' REQUIREMENTS

Automobiles are not permitted to cross the border if passenger cannot show the registration number of the car, also the maker's name.

If the automobile is to remain in Canada or the United States less than thirty days a touring permit is obtainable from the Customs' Office at the port of entry, allowing the car to run for one month without securing a Custom's bond or depositing duty.

If more than a thirty-day stay is planned in Canada, a Custom's bond, valid for six months, must be obtained, with a twenty-five dollar ($25) cash deposit, guaranteeing the re-exportation of the car within that period, and Canadian registration must be effected and licence obtained.

CONSTANTLY IMPROVED BUT NO YEARLY MODELS

There are obvious benefits to the purchaser in Dodge Brothers policy of making constant, gradual refinements in their product instead of changing from one design to another year after year.

Chief among these is the fact that the car may be operated throughout the full limit of its usefulness without the extra depreciation loss which results from a rapid succession of radically different models.

Rambles Round Victoria

Our Scenery and Its History

By ROBERT CONNELL

COLWOOD AND LANGFORD

Greater changes are taking place around Colwood and Langford than perhaps at any other point in the vicinity of Victoria. Other few years ago it was a sparsely settled rural district of park-like spaces and open woodland with here and there a few farmhouses. Colwood Park, of some 1,000 acres, was a quiet grazing place, affording in winter when frosts were sharp enough a pleasant pond for skating and on such occasions much resorted to by the young people of the city. I speak of the days before the arena was built. Now the area has been given over to golf, and the green turf, with its industrial sheep, and the gay succession of players for whose presence (to say nothing of ultimate) selection the grass is nibbled, together make up a pretty scene as ever the stately first looked down upon. The nature of the soil has not been such as to adapt itself readily to the purposes of agriculture and so the "back to the land" movement of late years has led to the springing up of a large number of poultry farms. Langford has become a village rivaling the prestige of older Colwood, and for some not clearly apparent reason the E. & N. Railway Company has altered the name of Langford Station to Colwood.

THE THREE LAKES

The district is fortunate in the possession of three lakes, of which the central, Langford Lake, is the largest. It has long had a reputation as a holiday resort, and unlike many reputations both of persons and places it has never faded. Its valuation is seen in the growing number of summer cottages that peep from the wooded verdure of its shores. To the south of it lies Glen Lake, also growing in popularity, while to the northeast is Florence Lake, certainly not so well known to the casual traveler. But while Langford and Glen lakes lie in the old river deposits of the glacial Colwood, Florence Lake is situated in a rock basin on the foundations of Mount Skagit.

THROUGH WOOD AND DALE

Leaving the island highway I passed along the base of Mt. Skagit across the irregular drift. Here I found one or two hollows in which lay the aquatic plants which had earlier flourished in water now dried up. The surface was thickly carpeted with green sheets of liverwort, with palm-like reproductive branches. In one almost dry lakelet water lilies were growing and all along the water's edge and below its surface were innumerable plants of the water-crowfoot. Its blossoms were over, but the seedvessels were there, and while on the surface floated a small but orthodox-looking leaf below the surface, in the warm waters of the pond the leaves were fine and hair-like. It is a curious sight to see the evolution of plants to suit the changes in the leafage of these tiny flowered white buttercups. With the drying up of the ponds the hairlike leaves are replaced by wider surfaces more befitting the breathing of an aerial atmosphere where every drop of water is precious and requires proportional conservation. Certainly along the margins of the lakes as along the sea-shore we meet the most curious adaptations of habit to cope with changed environment. At Beaver Lake the other day I saw the Yellow Pond Lily in bloom several yards from the water where it had been left high and dry by the recession of the lake level. Given time such peculiarities of growth and development found modification. Crossing a shoulder of rock I came out upon Florence Lake, its gleaming waters rippled by a growing breeze. The path winds under the hillside with low cliffs of gray lichen stained rocks. Where it descends to the water, in and out among the aspen blossoms fill with swift wings small dragon flies of brilliant blue-green color, resting for a moment and then off again in their game. For it is difficult to recognize any purpose beyond that of pure delight in the sunshine and sweet air. As cold reduces the vitality and tends to suspend the vital functions, so heat seems to produce a kind of intoxicating excitement with these were much larger ones of duller color, but whose four wings in full extension at rest showed across their transparent netted membranes two dark brown bands on each. The pale blue Scudder's Campanula was still plentifully in bloom with here and there a few flowers of Linnaea, for in the time is well-nigh over. At the northern end of the lake the timber becomes denser and the ground moister. There is consequently a deeper green of leafage though even here flowers are scarce. But my searching is not entirely without reward.

THE LEGNORTS

THE MEADOWS

In the good old days people had an incentive to making the acquaintance of the plants, for did they not possess many wonderful magical properties? So the heads of the old wise folk were full of many queer things about what they could do or what might be done with them. Healing of man and beast was perhaps of all these gifts the most desirable and to this day many plants bear in common and scientific name the memory of their medicinal virtues. Such are Sanicle, Heal-all, Scrophularia, Yerba Buena. But one of the strangest properties was ascribed to the ferns, for "fern-seed" was believed to confer invisibility and was in consequence much sought after by the evil and suspicious. One branch of the fern family was distinguished by its power over iron. Horses passing over where it grew lost the nails from their shoes. In "Wayside and Woodland Ferns," Mr. Steep quotes from an old poet:

"Horses that feeding on the grassy hills,
Tread upon moonwort with their hollow hooves,
Though lately shod, at night go barefoot home."
The maker musing where their shoes be gone."

The ferns were represented with us here by two Botrychiums, and it was my good fortune to come upon the more graceful species in some quantity in the dense forest. The stream running between them under a small bracken but smoother and finer in every way. Above it rises at this season the fertile pond bearing the spore-capsules on its stem divisions. Some of the plants were eighteen inches high and they were quite striking in the dark recesses where they grew. I found no ill effects from them, not even having the ill-fortune to lose my knife.

SWAMP PLANTS

I launched on a fallen tree over the dry bed of a little creek, yet not quite dry for there were little pools of water still remaining. The stream running between them under a small bracken but smoother and finer in every way. Above it rises at this season the fertile pond bearing the spore-capsules on its stem divisions. Some of the plants were eighteen inches high and they were quite striking in the dark recesses where they grew. I found no ill effects from them, not even having the ill-fortune to lose my knife.

NEW McLAUGHLIN MODELS ON NEW

One of Most Attractive Cars on Market Displayed by Local Agency

Six new body models on a chassis of 144-in. wheel base, embodying a new six-cylinder engine, four and a half-inch stroke, is the sensational announcement made by the McLaughlin Motor Car Co. Limited. The new model is to be known as the "Special Six," and is on show and sale here at H. A. Davis Limited, Yates Street.

The body models will be: A five passenger-touring, a five passenger double-service Sedan, a two passenger Roadster, a two passenger Business Coupe, a five passenger Sedan and a four passenger Coupe. Low pressure balloon cord tires will be standard equipment on all models.

The engine is a valve-in-head type with automotive lubrication throughout and with cylinder heads easily removable. The clutch and transmission form integral parts of the engine which is suspended at three points from the main frame. The crank shaft is a drop forging, extra heavy and balanced with four large bearings. Large valves are operated by noiseless, adjustable push rods through rocker arms which are automatically lubricated from the engine. This engine produces fifty actual brake horse-power.

It has pressure feed lubrication to the crankshaft and connecting rod bearings, also to the cam shaft and pump shaft front bearings, rocker arm bushings and push rod socket joints, as well as timing gears. Pistons, cylinder walls, cams, rollers and other three camshaft bearings are lubricated by mist of oil. Water cooling is by centrifugal pump operated from the camshaft by spiral gears. The Harrison cellular radiator is used.

The Carburetor is the improved automatic float feed type, supplied by vacuum system from the gasoline tank mounted on the rear of frame. Automatic heat control assures proper vaporization at all speeds. Air regulator and choke buttons are on the instrument board.

Delco ignition, starting and lighting are used, the current being supplied by storage battery and Delco electrical generator. The spark advances automatically.

The clutch is multiple disk, dry plate, requiring but slight pressure to operate. It is very smooth in engagement and very positive in action and the adjustment is particularly simple. The transmission is the selective sliding gear type; the gears are special and heat treated. There is positive interlocking hand control so that the gears can be shifted with the tip of the fingers.

The rear axle is the three-quarter floating type which means that all the weight of the car is taken on axle tubes and only driving torque is taken by axle shafts. The differential is mounted on high duty ball bearings, pinion shaft on extra large ball bearings, rear wheels on Hyatt roller bearings, and spiral bevel gears are fully adjustable.

Proven McLaughlin-Buick four wheel brakes are standard on all models. Wheels are of artillery type with hub flanges. Tires are 31x4.35 inch, low pressure balloons on all models.

All closed models are equipped with sunshade, automatic windshield wiper, new style one-piece windshield easily raised or lowered by handle in similar manner to windows. Open models have a Cowl ventilator and windshield wiper. Standard equipment on all models includes dim and full headlights with Brown anti-glare reflectors, a decided advance in headlamp design, parking lights on cowl, combination tail and stop light, motor driven horn, seventy mile speedometer, transmission lock, rear vision mirror, running board scuff plates, windshield wiper-automatic on all closed models. William Davis, manager of the local McLaughlin agency, has cars on display.

On the Making of Pottery In British Columbia

By John Kyle, A.R.C.A.

Provincial Organizer of Technical Education

Pottery includes many varieties of ware made from many different kinds of clays. At the lower end of the ceramic scale is the common clay from which bricks, tiles and flower-pots are made; at the upper end of the scale we have porcelain and the fine china clays. Between these extremes the qualities of pottery are varied and numerous.

For simplicity's sake let us grade the clays into the following: Brick-clay, white earthenware-clays, stoneware-clays, porcelain and ball-clay.

NIGHT SCHOOL STUDENTS MAKE EXCELLENT POTTERY

clays, white earthenware-clays, stoneware-clays, porcelain and ball-clay.

BRICK-CLAY

There is a great variety of pottery made from this natural impure clay which burns to colors ranging from light buff and deep red. Most brick and tile makers use this clay. It is shaped by hand or by machine, and is fired in a kiln at a high temperature, consequently the body remains porous after firing. It is then, if the vessel is required to be watertight, covered with a glaze and fired again.

Ware of this simple kind is met with in stores under the name of Mexican, Indian, Flemish, English terra-cotta, etc. Colored glazes, enamels make these rough and coarse vessels very effective and artistic as ornaments. In museums the same type of pottery is usually classed under the name of Samian ware.

The rough and coarse nature of the clay may be improved by mixing with other clays, and this has been done when experimenting with the clays from Terrace, Lakelse, Clayburn, Port Haney, Victoria, Sidney Island, Clayoquot and Vernon. With the brick-clay from Port Haney flower-pots are now successfully manufactured by a firm of potters who have their place on Fraser Avenue, Vancouver.

WHITE EARTHENWARE-CLAY

White earthenware-clay comes next in quality, and from this is made heavy tableware, ironstone china and white granite ware. The white burning-clay is mixed with finely ground quartz and feldspar, and the composition burns to a fairly close but porous body, which is then covered with a hard transparent glaze and fired a second time.

STONEWARE-CLAY

From this clay domestic articles are made, such as crocks, jugs, mixing bowls, teapots, etc. This clay generally burns to a dense body of extreme hardness, it is recommended by Miss Mary E. Young as the best clay for school work. It is plastic, clean and burns to a hard body of cream color, and has a wide range of firing. The only known deposits of this clay occur in Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia. Where they cannot be obtained, however, Miss Young recommends the clays of Lakelse and Terrace, B.C., which have good drying qualities and are very plastic.

These B.C. clays work well either on the wheel or for casting, and their shrinkage is low. They burn to a dense red body at about 1,800 deg. F. Beautiful glaze effects are also possible with these clays with the use of colored enamels. One of a very suitable character, firing at 1,800 deg. F., and having a blue color, is composed of the following:

White lead 155 gms.
Whiting 15 gms.
Feldspar 97 gms.
China clay 5 gms.
Flint 30 gms.
Tin oxide 74 gms.
Cobalt oxide, black 5 gms.

PORCELAIN-CLAY

Porcelain is made from the finest white Kaolin, washed to clear it from quartz, mica and other impurities. The Kaolin is then mixed with ball-clay, feldspar and flint. Kaolin gives the pure white color; ball-clay provides plasticity and a bonding quality; feldspar fuses the composition to make it hard and impervious; flint gives the necessary porosity for the material to take a glaze.

When this mixture is fired at a pottery studio in Banff, to give instruction to their members. They purchased a kiln, made a kick-wheel and are continuing their research work with a commercial motive. If this group keep up their activity, success will doubtless attend their efforts.

At the Summer school for teachers held in Victoria in 1923, a pottery class was organized under the direction of Miss Young, and the native clays of B.C. were used entirely. Designs of a purely western character were encouraged. Indian motifs were studied, and the foundation was laid for the making of characteristic forms and decorations which are beyond the competitive market. The opinion has been freely expressed by business men that such novel and distinctive western designs would readily sell to tourists and others.

Following the Summer school work a few of the students, augmented by others interested in the work, arranged to meet at a night school class held by the Board of School Trustees, and at the Summer school of 1924 another distinct step forward is confidently expected.

Owing to the industrial prospects with this work, the Department of Education has, and will continue to support the art of pottery-making, and no one can foretell the future when the trained hands and minds of the hand can mould the plastic clay which lies waiting for its affinity.

Long years ago the island of Samos, in the Aegean Sea, was a hive of industry. Its potters had brought fame to the island; their wares were shipped to all parts of the then known world; the island merchants were princes in the land, but their wealth incurred the envy

STEADY STREAM OF CARS COMES INTO CANADA FROM U.S.

Up to July 5 Total Was Close to 20,000 by Pacific Highway

A total of 19,114 American cars have crossed into Canada by way of the Pacific Highway and Douglas, customs stations since April 1, according to figures compiled by the officials on duty at the international boundary. Of this number, no fewer than 3,994 cars were passed through the stations during the first five days of July. This is the heaviest figure yet recorded at the boundary stations and by the end of the month it is expected that the total for the month will reach approximately 10,000 cars. The total of foreign cars passing through the Pacific Highway station during the first five days of July was 3,561, while 433 were checked through the Douglas station. The aggregate of American and Canadian cars cleared through the two stations since April 1, both in and out, amounts to the large figure of 40,979. Commencing in April, when 2,580 cars were cleared through the Pacific Highway headquarters, and 423 through the Douglas station, the influx of American tourists has been steadily increasing each month. In May the total reached 5,434, while in June the figure reached 6,673. During the past three months, 5,610 Canadian cars have been cleared as passing South; while 5,149 have returned from the United States.

VIMY RIDGE MEMORIAL

To the Editor—I read in your paper, dated July 9, a letter from our old friend Brig.-Gen. R. R. Clarke, asking the members of the first division be asked to contribute their twenty-five cents towards the repairs of that memorial cross erected on Vimy Ridge.

Now, sir, as one who fought there and lost many comrades on the ridge I think it would be only right that all active service men be given the chance to contribute their share towards the upkeep and repairs to this sacred monument, as perhaps we of other divisions may have lost just as many men and comrades as did the first division.

PREDESTINATION

To the Editor—Germany will collapse, she is not worth anything; a spirit voice informed me. Six weeks later France took possession of the Rhur Valley because Germany could not make her reparation payment.

Such and similar messages and various signs occurring to me, of which I have witnessed, arrested my attention and cause me to wonder who the spirits are. And if we possess an innate power to reanimate ourselves at the close of this life, if the spirits are the power beyond, why they do not remove the affliction and sorrow from this life? With absolute confidence that others besides our philanthropists who have passed over wondrous ways so much good if it were in their power I was prone to believe that the power was beyond the voice I had heard. Considering that under certain planetary aspects such events as strikes, shipwrecks, coal mine calamities, wars, etc., occur, and realizing that the planets pre-existed mankind, naturally I concluded that the power is apart from them which must be in God the Creator.

With an established belief in a living God I wished to ascertain what possible reason He could have to justify His need or tolerance of sickness, poverty, pain, sorrow, etc. To say it must be right or it would not be, as I have heard ministers of the Gospel assert, was not sufficient for me. I desired something more in the nature of a fact, something rational and unassailable to sustain and defend my dogma. Parents, though the only animal to my knowledge that thrives and inflicts punishment upon their own progeny, stand in the same position to their children as God to His people, in this respect: God would say it is unavoidable and indispensable since it is for the good of the world. A parent would answer similarly if the child asked "Why do you thrash me?" The parents often feel sorry to inflict punishment, so does a judge, but since it is to guide and restrain one it must occur.

But God's essential need for sickness, pain, sorrow and affliction, is to create humanity. The basic principles of humanity are: sympathy, kindness and tenderness; when these qualities are absent in man he is inhuman. If we were immune from sickness, affliction and sorrow, there would be no need for tenderness and sympathy, so it is evident humanity had its birth at the bedside of affliction. If no one was ever in trouble or need there would be no need for kindness, so the fundamental principle of humanity would be lost. The author of "Fatalism and Indispensable Proof of a Living God."

HOW A LION GETS A TOOTH PULLED.—This modern Androcles, attempting to soothe the lion's pain, is having a little harder time of it than the chap that removed the historic thorn from a lion's paw. However, the lion will probably be quite grateful when it is all over. Its no easy job being dentist to a lion as the picture shows. It is necessary to hold open the jaw with a rope. The photo was secured at the Bronx Park (N.Y.) Zoo.

AMERICANS NOT WANTED!—Some Japanese merchants and professional men have been quick to inform the world they do not cater to Americans. This sign has been posted on the Paris Inn, near the Imperial Hotel, to avoid any possible boycott by Japanese who might consider it "undesirably foreign." It reads: "The Paris Inn adopts the pure French style appealing to Japanese taste. We do not follow example of America, absolutely! We hope for your understanding. Manager Kimiko Satomi." Two physicians, a dentist, and one wholesale firm have posted notices advising Americans they are not wanted on their premises.

DRY AGENTS' NEWEST WORRY.—Here is the newest way to try to outwit prohibition agents. Just put on a pair of "cow shoes" if the dry boys get on your trail. They fooled the agents down around Hillsboro—for a little while. Running across a large still, the agents started hunting the operator. He was nowhere in sight. And no human footprints could be seen. But there were marks of bovine hoofs. The agents followed them and found the distiller. One look at his shoes convinced them the footprints were his. Two blocks of wood, cut to resemble a cow's hoofs, were fastened to a wire frame attached to the soles of his shoes.

FRANCE'S MARY.—Mlle. Odette Jacqueline is one of the youngest stars on the Parisian screen. She is only 18. But already the critics are calling her the "Mary Pickford of France."

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE.—Here is John W. Davis' last picture, taken in New York as votes in the Democratic convention began piling up in his favor.

SOCIALIST, LABOR PREMIERS MEET.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain stepped back to open the gate for Premier M. Herriot of France as the two premiers were entering the garden at MacDonald's Summer home at Chyquers. The two statesmen, during their visit, discussed means whereby Europe's disturbed affairs soon might be adjusted satisfactorily.

FRANCE, THE MAN!—This new bust of Anatole France, dean of French writers (top), has just been completed by Emile Bourdelle, leading French sculptor. Below is the aged author's latest photograph.

BEATEN.—W. "Bill" McLuckie of the Kanawaki Club, Montreal, who has defeated in the second round of the Canadian amateur golf championship at Rosedale by Lauren Upson, of California. The game went to the thirty-eighth hole.

NEWSIE'S REWARD.—Trenton Karpus, a carrier boy for the San Francisco Daily News, has been recommended frequently for the businesslike way he handled his deliveries. But the other day he got a still bigger reward. One of his customers willed him $1,000 on her deathbed. He intends applying it upon a college education.

HAGEN IN ACTION.—This picture of Walter Hagen, winner of the British open golf crown, was taken as he played at Holyoke, and is the latest picture of him.

DARKNESS FAILS TO STOP THEM.—This is the first picture actually showing night flying conditions on the transcontinental airmail route. Here is a plane being loaded in Omaha at midnight before hopping off on the next lap from New York to San Francisco.

A RATHER ABRUPT LANDING!—There were plenty of thrills in the aerial races and carnival the 27th Division Air Service, New York National Guard, staged at Miller Field, Staten Island. Here, for instance, is Alva F. Starr, winner of the parachute jump, hitting the ground in a rather abrupt landing.

SUZANNE ON THE GO.—Here is the first picture to reach this country of Suzanne Lenglen, idol of France, in action on the Wimbledon courts. The French star faced one of the hardest battles of her career the other day in a match with Elizabeth Ryan, a California girl. Lenglen finally won, but it took practically all her strategy to do it.

SNOW IN JUNE.—Snow in June, with countless men snow-balling one another. It has just happened in Omaha. But the snow was imported. The Colorado delegation to the national Lions' convention brought a carload of it from Corona Pass, Colo., more than 700 miles away. Here they are unloading it.

DOWNHEARTED! FAR FROM IT!—Residents of tornado-stricken Lorain, O., are smiling through their troubles. Take this family for instance. The roof is off their home and the front wall is gone. But they are complacently sitting in their living room, reading their newspapers, unmindful of the crowds on the street below. Many apartments above stores on Broadway, were dealt with similarly by the terrific wind as it swept through the city.

HE KEEPS COOL.—The hot weather we have been having recently doesn't faze this little fellow, who scorns all fear of sunburn and concentrates all mental energy on a big ice cream cone. After the cone is finished he will continue his play along the beach without as much as one worry as to what either the Liberal or Conservative parties will do about the leadership question.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE By Uncle Ray

THE ISLAND OF CRETE

The island of Crete lies in the eastern part of the Mediterranean sea. It is between Egypt and Greece. The people of Crete learned to write a great many years ago, long before anyone in Europe could even set down his name. Some things were taught the Cretans by sailors and traders from Egypt.

The alphabet idea (sound writing)

Some day scientists may learn the meaning of this writing, but at present it is a puzzle as is all Cretan writing.

may have been learned from the Egyptians. If so, the signs were much changed by the people of Crete. Cretan writing is one of the mysteries of ancient times. No one has yet been able to read it.

Although we cannot read the writing we can tell quite a little about the civilization of the island from ruins of cities and villages. The greatest city was made up chiefly of brick houses, in which lived metal workers, painters, traders and clay workers. The biggest building was the king's palace. It covered five acres of ground, and seems to have been at least four stories high. What is said to have been the throne of the king is shown in one of our illustrations. The Cretan artists were more skillful than those of Egypt. Their paintings on palace walls are true to life. One painting shows a great crowd of Cretan lords and ladies gathered around the king.

Jars of huge size—about the height of a man—were found in the basement of the palace. These were used for storing grain and oils.

ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY

Have you been wondering just where Egypt, Palestine, Phoenicia, Greece and the land of Two Rivers were located? Have you wanted to know how big they were compared to one another? To answer these questions, we have a map before us. It is simple. We could have filled our map with the names of cities, rivers, mountains and lakes, but I thought it would be best to name only the most important things.

Egypt—great Egypt!—can be easily found. Through it runs the Nile, one of the longest rivers in the world. It was on the sides of the Nile that people learned to write and use metals a great many years ago.

The Land of Two Rivers shares with Egypt the credit for being the home of the first civilization. Scientists have not yet been able to prove which took the earliest step in the use of metal and writing. The Land of Two Rivers was at different times called Sumer, Akkad, Babylonia, Assyria, Chaldea and Persia.

At this point in our story it is in the hands of Persia: the Persian kings have also won land between it and Greece. The island of Crete—the home of ancient mystery writing and splendid paintings—is to be seen near Greece.

Palestine—country of the Hebrews—lies off the eastern end of the Mediterranean sea. Beside it is Phoenicia, where lived some of the boldest sailors who ever sailed the sea.

An ancient land and its countries.

INTRODUCING ATHENS

The greatest city in Greece was Athens. It was just north of the land strip which joins the two parts of Greece. Most of what is worth while in Greek history came from Athens. The city got its start a great many years ago. The people who settled there wanted to be near the sea, but not right on the shore. They built their village about four-and-a-half miles from the coast.

At the seashore was a harbor, around which a town was built. This town "belonged" to Athens in one sense of the word, but it was not a part of the real city. Two great walls were built alongside a road between Athens and the seaport town. These were for protection in case of war. The Greeks were foolish enough to have war among themselves. Athens, Sparta and Corinth were three of the cities which most often got into disputes and tried to settle them by fighting.

Most of the people in Athens were slaves. They did the hard work of the city. They could not vote or help rule things. Athens also contained some foreigners, mostly traders and merchants who had come from Asia Minor or Egypt. The foreigners were thought to be better than slaves, but not so good as the "freemen." The freemen were the people in Athens who ran the city. There were a good many thousands of them. We shall have much to say about their manner of life.

SHELTERS FOR THE GODS

The earliest Greeks seem to have bowed down in prayer before the great forces of nature—thunder and lightning, wind and rain, flood and earthquake.

"There are powers back of all these things," said the Greeks. "Let us worship them."

So it was that they knelt to the spirits of Fountains and Trees, of Caves and Mountains. They did not then speak of gods who had the shape of men.

Trees were supposed to have a special sacredness. Certain ones were thought sacred to certain god-powers. One ancient picture shows a part of a pine tree. From branches are hanging rings of brass, which the wind would blow together and thus make a musical sound. Below the rings is an altar. The Greeks placed gifts on such altars.

Large caves were worshipped because of the mysterious darkness within. People tossed dice in front of a certain cave and thought the god-power inside would make the dice fall in such a way as to answer questions.

In time the Greeks became tired of not knowing how the gods looked. They made statues and said this one looked like a certain god, and that looked like another god.

What shape did they give to their gods? The human shape. That was natural, for what other creature on earth was so nobly made? It was also natural that they should make their gods look like the most beautiful persons who could be found. Even after the gods had been put into human shape, their homes remained mountains, caves, trees and fountains.

Statues of gods and goddesses were often placed under the branches of trees. This was to protect them from rain and snow, to give them shelter. Sometimes hollows were made in tree trunks and statues were placed in there. The tree-homes for the gods was the beginning of the temple. Later on you will hear of marvelous temples the Greeks made to house the gods.

RELICS OF EARLY GREECE

Greece is divided into two parts. The lower part is almost an island, being joined to the upper part only by a thin strip of land. South of that strip scientists have found relics of people who became "civilized" at a very early time.

A city was built in that region. We speak of it as Mycenae. Walls were put up all around the city. Lions were carved in stone above a large gate. The lions look something like those sculptured in the Land of Two Rivers and other eastern places. They may have been made by tribes

Dolls of different nations would not be much to our liking unless one was from our very own land. So here's a sailor at salute, a bit young and awkward, we'll admit, but patriotic, and promising if you make him up according to instructions.

Heavy unbleached muslin is best for making these little stuffed dolls, then their cheeks may be tinted, but whether rouged or not, the yellow muslin is not a bad flesh color. If you could tint Jackie's whole face, except eyeballs, and his hands a flesh color, then he would be all the better as a bleached muslin boy. No cloth can be too white and spotless for a son of the navy!

Trace this pattern through a sheet of carbon paper onto an eight-inch square of cloth. Then you should have yellow, red and blue embroidery floss; yellow outline stitches or solid for his hair; red for his lips and tie, and blue solid for eyes, cap-band and cuffs, while all the other lines are outlined in the same dark blue or black. This embroidery is all finished before the shape is cut out, to prevent fraying. Then cut a seam's width out, like the dotted line suggests, turn right side in and stitch tightly all except across the bottom. Turn and stuff smoothly with cotton, then finish the final opening.

Lots of children who are not large enough to sew and make these dolls from many lands, have the collection in paper dolls. You can readily see how easy it is to cut, color and paste Jackie into a good strong paper sailor. He wouldn't be much good in water, but this is a dry-land sailor anyway.

USE CARE IN WOODS

An example of how small a start it takes to make a serious fire may be seen almost any day now in island woods. From a neglected camper's fire—the spark of a logging engine—or even the rays of the sun glinting through a broken bottle—may bring the forest fire which roars through acres of fine standing trees, driving animals and birds before it. Once started the forest blaze is difficult to extinguish. While the dry weather lasts too much care cannot be taken that you and others who use the woods.

THE SANDWICHES

Date Sandwiches: These will require half-cup of good fresh dates, stoned, mashed and cut in small pieces, with half-cup of walnuts chopped fine, and then half-cup of cream or dressing. When these are mixed together and spread on fresh bread, oh boy!

Deviled Ham Sandwiches: These will take:

- 1 cupful cold boiled ham.
 - 1 teaspoon lemon juice.
 - 3 teaspoons melted butter.
 - Yolks two hard-boiled eggs.

Uncle Wiggily and Jackie's Drum

Copyright, 1924, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

By Howard R. Garis.

"Boom! Boom! Boomity-oom-boom!" was the noise Uncle Wiggily heard as he was eating breakfast in his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"My goodness!" cried the bunny rabbit gentleman, nervous like. "What's that?"

"Only Jackie Bow Wow beating his drum," answered Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, as she looked out of the window.

Uncle Wiggily went on eating his breakfast while his muskrat lady housekeeper went out where the doggie boy was banging away.

"Will you please beat your drum around the corner, Jackie?" asked Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "The noise bothers Uncle Wiggily."

"Oh, all right!" barked Jackie, who was very fond of the rabbit gentleman. So Jackie marched like a soldier down the street, and around the corner, his drum going: "Boom! Boom! Boomity-oom-boom!" all the way. But even as far off as that Un-

"I'm going off to the woods. There

Uncle Wiggily sat up, and, through the bushes he saw the little dog boy beating his drum.

"He must have followed me here to the woods to tease me," thought Mr. Longears. "He knew I didn't like the noise of his drum!"

Uncle Wiggily was just going to call to Jackie to run away and beat his drum down near the five and ten cent store when, all of a sudden, the Bob Cat jumped down out of a tree and sprang toward the rabbit.

"Now I'm going to get your ears!" howled the Bob Cat.

But just then Jackie beat his drum again—very hard—boom! boom! and the Bob Cat cried:

"The soldiers are coming! The soldiers are coming, and they will shoot guns at me! Always when a drum beats soldiers come! I'm going to run before they shoot me!"

And away ran the Bob Cat as fast as he could get taking with him his silly little tail.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "I'm glad you followed me here and beat your drum, Jackie!"

"Why, Uncle Wiggily! I didn't know you were here!" barked Jackie. "I wouldn't tease you that way. I came to the woods to beat my drum because everybody said I made a noise with it that they couldn't stand it. That's why I came here to the woods."

"I'm glad you did!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. And then he let Jackie bang the drum as much as he pleased—only the rabbit put in his ears some soft, fluffy cotton from the milkweed plant. So he couldn't hear the noise of the drum. And the electric light doesn't hide in the dark so the match can't see it to help it get a lollypop. I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily making a fire.

THE CRITICS REWARD

One of the stories told concerning the clever little English comedian, Wee George Wood, concerns an occasion when he was appearing at a wounded soldiers' matinee.

After the show he got into conversation in the street with two of the wounded ones. "And how have you enjoyed yourself?" he inquired.

"Oh, fine," replied one; "yours was the best turn I have seen." "I thought you were rotten," candidly retorted the other. "Well, I am not offended," said George. "Here's five shillings to get some cigarettes."

As he hobbled off towards the tobacconist, the soldier who had praised George's performance exclaimed, "Well, that's a bit of all right. I said you were splendid, and got nothing; he said you were rotten, and got five bob."

The comedian consoled him with the remark that everybody was entitled to his own judgment. "That's all very well," said the other, "but he never saw the show at all. I came out and told him you were rotten."

EVERYTHING IN KHAKI

The South African Premier, General Smuts, tells an amusing anecdote concerning the arrival in what was then German West Africa—it was in the early stages of the war—of certain small reinforcements from England.

The draft in question was made up mostly of quite young soldiers from one of the southern shires, and the lad from their own green fields, viewed the drab and dusty landscape with manifest disapproval.

Presently a swarm of locusts happened along, whereupon a voice was heard proclaiming in tones of deepest disgust:

"I say, Bill, I'm blessed if everything in this 'ere God-forsaken country ain't the khaki! Look at them butterflies!"

The danger to little feet of sand-covered embers on the beach was emphasized again this week when a little child burned the soles of both feet severely when treading on the remains of a picnic fire left by a careless party. The fire had been half-covered over with sand and left to go out of its own accord. As chance would have it, the wind-freshened the flames and the child was injured several hours after the fire had been deserted by its originators. Put out your fire, even if it takes two minutes longer to carry water from the shore, and make sure it is really "out" before you leave.

WHERE IS THE ALARM?

There are 114 fire alarm boxes in the city. These boxes are distributed evenly throughout all districts so that one at least may be within reasonable distance of every home. Do you know the box nearest your home? Remember, when a fire comes it will be too late to find out. Spot the box to-day, and be sure the knowledge will never be wasted.

VICTORIA COURTESY PLEASES TOURISTS

Express Thanks For Canadian Hospitality and Hopes to Return

Courtesy shown to tourists during their visit to Victoria has inspired two who came from Portland to pen a letter on their return home expressing appreciation of the way the citizens treat their guests and of Canadian hospitality in general. With a request that the newspapers be asked to publish it, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Schultdt have sent the following letter to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce:

"Having just returned from a most enjoyable tour through Victoria, I wish to express my gratitude for the hospitality accorded my wife and I, to all the citizens of your wonderful city, especially to the caretaker of your auto tourists camp, who certainly works hard for the good of the tourists. I wish you could publish this letter so that the citizens might have a stronger opinion of the good will they have shown us, and also see the good to the auto camp of Victoria."

Again, expressing our sincere thanks for Canadian hospitality and hoping to return again."

Dark Teeth Bleached in Three Minutes
You have always longed for flashing white teeth. And now, at last you can have them—easily, quickly and safely! For scientists have discovered a remarkable new treatment which often in only three minutes bleaches dull dingy discolored teeth from the teeth, leaving them clean, sparkling white and lustrous. This new treatment, called Bleachodont, combination of a mild safe liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid cures and softens the stains, while the paste removes them, and if used daily prevents the formation of future stains. For simple brush teeth with a few drops of the liquid—then use the paste. The paste disappears and the teeth take on a dazzling new whiteness and lustre. First application usually leaves teeth whiter than with any other method. Bleachodont combination—harmless—does not affect enamel as the acid ingredients are intended to act on the surface—makes no enamel—rests especially beneficial for children's teeth which stain easily. Get Bleachodont combination today for a few cents. Be sure you ask for Bleachodont combination. At all good dealers. Cyrus H. Brown, John Cochrane, Owl Drug Co. Limited, Terry's Drug Store, F. J. Dealing with the Canadian railway situation, The Western Lumberman published in a recent issue the following:

Nowhere is the danger of careless thinking and careless writing more apt to work national injury than in dealing with the Canadian railway situation. In a spirit of care-free responsibility many people say and write—and think—that the Canadian National Railway is owned by the Government of Canada and that the Canadian Pacific Railway is owned by private securities.

There is absolutely no difference, so far as the British Columbia lumberman is concerned, between the nature of ownership of the Canadian National Railway and the nature of ownership of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Canadian Government holds title to actual ownership of the Canadian National Railway by paying off some two billion dollars in par value of shares and bonds owned by the holders of widely scattered investors who have paid their good money for securities based on the franchises and physical assets of the Canadian National Railway.

Until these securities are paid off, the railway system is owned by the security-holders. Security holdings may be widely scattered, but the management must, of necessity, be centralized; and therefore, as a result of financial uprisings consequent upon war conditions, the ordinary methods of corporate management ceased to be effective over the far-flung lines of the Canadian National and the necessary centralization of management effected by legislation which empowered the Canadian Government to constitute a Board of Directors and manage the railway for all the time in Canada affected by collapse of former methods of management. There is national control of management, but the security-holders still own the railroad.

UNSCATHED THROUGH WAR STRAIN
The Canadian Pacific Railway had attained a financial maturity and strength which carried its own methods of management unscathed through all the strains of war conditions; and the many thousands of holders of the C.P.R. securities did not resort to any changes but have continued their confidence in managing officials selected by their own methods and their own votes.

Private control to the difference in the method of selecting managers, the two great Canadian railway systems are governed by the Railway Act of Canada as regards franchises, rates, operation, management and maintenance; are owned by security-holders; and, as monies invested in railway securities are in practice never paid off but refunded into new securities at successive maturities, there is no likelihood of any greater cleavage of ownership interest ever developing between the two systems. Both are national in franchise, in aims, in territorial development, in internal trade development and overseas trade development; each is limited, on the side of private ownership, to the holding of securities issued under authority of law.

Private control to the difference in these elementary facts, you will be ready to go on to the next subject of national importance, which is that, with the possible exception of the agricultural industry, the railway business is that branch of industry which most directly and substantially retains the great bulk of its earnings towards developing and maintaining the internal trade and home markets of the nation. Type being inelastic and space limited, this subject will be developed by use of C.P.R. figures; bearing in mind the fact that precisely the same conditions apply to Canadian National figures.

OF EACH $100, 81% EXPENDED IN CANADA
Out of every dollar earned by the C.P.R. the sum of eighty-one cents is spent in the home markets of Canada for wages, materials, supplies, taxes and insurance. In 1923 the C.P.R. total earnings were $195,837,089 and every community in Canada directly benefited by the expenditure of eighty-one per cent of this huge amount in the Canadian home market. One out of the remaining nineteen per cent interest was paid to the security-holders and the necessary addition carried to reserve.

Up to the greatest possible extent to which C.P.R. earnings can be increased every person in Canada will directly benefit financially. Railway earnings constitute one kind of currency in respect whereof nobody can get between the public and the money; wages and supplies must be paid for in this currency and it is a powerful stimulus to prosperity in the home market—wholesale and retail.

There has never been any discussion on the part of the C.P.R. to ask for public money without giving service in return; including an intelligent, aggressive and attractive advertising campaign of Canada and Canadian resources to the far corners of the earth and over the Seven Seas. Getting eighty-one per cent of total earnings spent in the home market, with the accompaniment of a permanent advertising campaign worldwide in limit and nationally universal in scope, constitutes an irrefragable argument for continued co-operation between Canadian business interests and the C.P.R. to the end that increased C.P.R. earnings may be followed by increased C.P.R. expenditures in the Canadian home market and increased advertising of Canada and Canadian resources abroad.

THE OFFER OF FREEDOM
Natalie had been wondering how Constance Deering's loyalty to herself would affect her attitude toward Barry.

Her doubts were put at rest almost immediately. Constance was friendly, casual, the same Constance who had played golf with Barry in Florida the Winter before. She and Barry, as partners beat out the summer. As they strolled back to the clubhouse, Natalie and Constance dropped behind the two men.

"I'm a perfect frazzle," acknowledged Constance, "The performance in the limelight is taking it out of me, especially when I don't know my lines. The whole rocking-chair brigade has given us its undivided attention. All afternoon, I've been saying to myself, 'What a relief this is! What a relief to be able to withdraw from the room when luncheon was over, and allow her forced smile to fade for a moment!'"

The respite was brief, however, for already a page had come to tell her that Barry had arrived. The worst of the ordeal, she knew, was yet to come. For the witnesses of the ensuing drama were not all possessed of the loyalty of friends.

Constance came to her in the dressing room while she busied herself with her vanity case. There was no one else present, so Constance perched herself on the edge of the dressing table and lit a cigarette.

"I know I'm a beast even to talk about this dreadful thing," she began, "but, Natalie, you really ought to tell your friends what you intend to do. You can count on us all rallying around you, but we really should know, so we can properly defend you and lay the very ghost of scandal!"

"Jim says," she went on, "that Robert Amory has the poorest sort of a case. You know about it, of course?"

"I didn't read the papers. The headlines—stunned me."

"My goodness, you're a queer girl! Fancy any wife in your position not devouring the details!"

"Can the details alter the fact? The whole idea is revolting."

"Perhaps," conceded Constance. "But I think you ought to know that Amory based his whole charge on a single incident when he came home from a trip and discovered Barry in his home alone with Jeanette. It's ridiculous, weak, you can see it. Barry and Jeanette hadn't been—well, friendly—before Barry's marriage. And the meeting was just a laugh at the very suggestion. But Barry was always nice to Jeanette."

After a little, Natalie withdrew from her mother-in-law's compassionate arms, and tried to repair the damage of her tears.

She was ashamed of her breakdown after all her flaunted courage. But the older woman's sorrowing eyes, the knowledge that Mrs. Sheldon had been foster mother to the lonely orphan, and comforted her youthful tragedies, had been too much for her self-control.

"Forgive me, Mother Sheldon," she managed a smile through her tears. "It was cowardly of me to give way like that. Come up to my sitting room where we'll be undisturbed. Constance will forgive me for being late to-day all day."

She made a gallant little grimace and sought to draw Mrs. Sheldon toward the stars, but her mother-in-law shook her head.

"Don't be late to-day of all days," she enjoined significantly. "I can scarcely believe that you have the courage to go through with the ordeal before you. I honor you for it. My sweet child, God bless you and help you to bear it!"

She turned away to hide her own moist eyes.

"You can't really believe this awful thing about Barry?" Natalie questioned anxiously.

A faint smile answered her. The older woman's eyes were filled with sympathy and understanding.

"Mothers can never believe ill of the children they have held in their breasts. It is of you I am thinking, child. We can't have your life ruined. I promised your mother that I'd care for you and protect you from unhappiness. I can't defend my son at your expense. I can only enjoin you to choose what seems the best for your ultimate happiness. And I can pray that your own sense of loyalty and justice may make you merciful."

She went away after that, a gallant white-haired figure, too proud to plead for her son.

Natalie went out to her waiting car and told Jarvis to drive down the Avenue and through the most frequented streets of the city to the club. She wanted the world to see that morning, going about her daily activities with poise and dignity, without the least hint of a corner blazer on the name she bore in the scandal-loving public.

Passing the Hugh Sheldon house, she yielded to a sudden impulse and halted the car.

Madame was awake and would receive her. Forbes told her. His impassive face gave no faintest evidence that he was aware of the disgrace under which the household lay stricken.

The moment she entered the room where Harriet lay in the sunshine, Natalie knew that the news had not been kept from the invalid.

Harriet held off her arms silently, but Natalie, taking a firmer grip on her control, merely bent and kissed her with her accustomed gentleness.

"Where is Barry?" Harriet questioned in a hushed voice. "Hugh is wild. He has been trying to find him."

Natalie shook her head.

At that moment, Forbes appeared in the doorway.

"Mr. Barry is on the phone. Madame. Mr. Hugh has gone out but I thought you might like to speak."

"Let me talk to Barry, Harriet," said Natalie, on a sudden impulse.

She picked up the extension phone and spoke into the transmitter softly.

"Barry—I am with Harriet. Hugh has gone out. He's very anxious to talk with you. But what I have to ask is this: Will you meet me at the club after luncheon and have the game with me as we arranged yesterday?"

"Natalie!" There was a queer note in Barry's voice. "You can't mean you want to—after—?"

"Shall I expect you at three?" she continued smoothly. "And remember we'll have to dine out. All the servants are going to Mr. Barry's wedding and I am letting Jarvis off directly after he takes me to the club, so bring the roadster when you come."

She emphasized these homely details as gravely as if the morning's

OAKLANDS PEOPLE NOT SATISFIED WITH BOWKER CREEK PLAN

Think Progress on Remedial Measures is Too Slow

The proposal to deepen the ditches in Oakland, near Doncaster Drive at its intersection of Oakland Avenue, which form part of Bowker Creek, was discussed in public works committee of the city council yesterday, and referred to a committee for action.

The aldermen first inspected a plan, after which Alderman Woodward voiced a suggestion that the houses affected by floods should be moved in accordance with a recommendation already made to the council by the engineer.

A deputation of ladies from the district affected, presented a list of questions, seeking answers affecting grades, and so forth.

One lady wanted to know why the city had not paid them for the damage done by storm water last winter?

She challenged Alderman Sangster that it was five months since the aldermen had visited the district, and nothing had been done in the meantime.

The chairman of the works committee replied that the council intended to act, and for that purpose had this report before them.

The report was referred to the finance committee, the city engineer, and solicitor for action, subject to the necessary financial arrangements. This report recommended spending $3,000 in a scheme to double the discharge of surface water.

expense and indignity" by their acts. Mr. MacQueen said he had taken every step in order to secure a license for the sale of milk by Mrs. MacQueen, and the animals supplying the milk had been twice tested by Dr. White, the animal inspector. His wife had applied for a city license on June 1, he said, and had been told by Dr. A. G. Price, city health officer, to have her animals inspected. Inspection was made on June 14 and again on June 15, and the animals passed. He had asked the inspector why Dr. Price had not issued a license and he (Dr. White) had replied that because his herd was so small it was hardly worth while to issue him a license. On June 16, he continued, about four hours after the last inspection, he had received a summons to appear in court to answer a charge of selling milk without a city license.

Alderman Sangster raised the question of the right of appeal on the matter to sit as a court of appeal on the magistrate's decision recently.

Alderman Woodward pointed out that Mr. MacQueen had alleged improper action by city officials in issuing a summons in the police court, and a proper inquiry should be conducted.

The aldermen thereupon declined to discuss the matter, and the question of whether an inquiry under oath should be conducted under the Municipal Act, on the allegations against the officials.

COUNCIL TO PUT CASE TO SURVEY

To Present Memorandum on Education to Commission

The City Council yesterday afternoon agreed to present a memorandum to the Educational Survey with regard to the various suggestions it desires to make, when the Commission sits here next week.

Alderman Woodward pointed out that much criticism of educational methods had been voiced by the council members, and he moved that a special committee be struck to prepare a memorandum to present to the council.

The legislative committee, Alderman Christie, suggested, but Alderman Sangster thought that the better practice would be to have critics of education fashion the memorandum. Alderman Woodward believed it would be better to have a committee thoroughly representative, and the names as mentioned were approved.

VICTORIA SCOUTS WELL RECEIVED

Hearty Welcome Extended as Cycle Party Reaches Each Scout Centre

The picked Victoria troop of Boy Scouts now on a cycle tour of the Island is meeting with a hearty reception at up-Island points. The following short but satisfactory message was yesterday afternoon received by Provincial headquarters of the Boy Scouts Association from Assistant District Commissioner H. T. Ravenhill, in charge of the Victoria Scouts now touring Vancouver Island: "Arrived in Nanaimo: having a wonderful time and everything is working out A1."

Yesterday this special Victoria troop was in Parksville, Errington and Qualicum Beach, staying last night as guests of Qualicum Beach Scouts before proceeding to Courtenay today.

Courtenay Scouts promise Victoria that they will do their best in every way, and in addition to many Scout activities they are putting on a boxing bout, having as referee Roy Cliffe, the middleweight champion of British Columbia.

Sunday will be spent with the Cumberland Scouts during the day, and a special Scout service will be held by Scoutmaster Rev. W. Leveridge. Whilst in this locality the Victoria Scouts hope to meet the Powell River Scouts, who are camping at Point Comox.

WILL NOT SEND DELEGATE TO UNION MEETING AT WINDSOR

The City Council at yesterday's meeting decided that it had no money to send a delegate to the annual convention of the Union of Canadian Municipalities at Windsor, Ont., next month.

Alderman Woodward said he hoped that the convention could be attended in conjunction with the proposed labor conference at Ottawa, to be called by the Federal Department of Labor at an early date.

No information with regard to this latter meeting was forthcoming.

HOSPITALS MEETING AND LICENSING OF VENDORS' AGENTS

Allusion was made in city council yesterday to the question of licensing representatives of hospital supplies houses at the convention of the B. C. Hospitals Association. This convention is due next month, and meanwhile the convention managers fear a repetition of the events of 1917, when such men attending a convention here were fined, and compelled to take out their licenses as ordinary traders.

Mayor Hayward explained the procedure, and the matter was left with the Mayor, to take what action he felt necessary on the subject.

Always The Best

All o' the Wheat bread

"ALL O' THE WHEAT" Bread is made from the whole of the wheat, with nothing added and nothing taken away. It is not a "nearly"-whole wheat bread; nor an injurious, medicated, habit-forming hybrid compound of bran and molasses—but 100 PER CENT WHOLE WHEAT. We select the finest golden wheat of our Prairie Provinces, and grind it in our own special stone mills. The result is the satisfying loaf of the whole-wheat berry, with all its mineral salts, phosphorous and lime contents left in; with its full complement of the rich proteins which lie under the husk; rich in those vitamins found in the outer wrapping of the grain, full-bodied, health-giving, sweet as a nut; possessing those valuable laxative properties for which doctors prescribe whole-wheat bread for sedentary workers. You'll like the "wheaty" flavor, too.
